FDR REVAMPS U. S. ARMY TO GAIN POWER

Sets Up Three Basic Units Under the Command of Chief of Staff.

EFFECTIVE MARCH 9

Authorizes Stimson To Set Up Other Commands as Needed.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt today reorganized the United States army by executive order in a move designed to make possible faster, better co-ordinated military action.

Mr. Roosevelt set up three basic units under the army chiefs of staff:

1. The "army ground forces" under a commanding general.
2. The "army air forces" also with their own commanding general.
3. A service of supply command, under a commanding general, to be known as the "services of supply."

The president also authorized Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson to set up, as he finds necessary for national security, such other departments as overseas departments, task forces, base commands, defense commands and commands in theaters of operations.

The reorganization transferred to the commanding general of the new army ground forces all functions, duties and powers of the present chiefs of the infantry, cavalry, field artillery and coast artillery corps except those relating to procurement, storage, and issue.

The functions and powers of the present commanding general of the general headquarters air force, the airforce combat command and the chief of the army corps were transferred to the commanding general of the new army air forces.

The president did not name the officers who will head the reorganized units in the executive order.

The president also authorized

Survivors of Convoy Relate Tale of Disaster.

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT—(AP)—A tale of wholesale disaster striking suddenly in the night far at sea has been brought here by survivors of a convoy which lost at least four of its merchant ships when it was caught by a pack of U-boats in mid-Atlantic.

Rescued seamen, 111 men from four vessels, were brought to port yesterday. Their accounts, indicating that the westward plodding convoy may have been tailed by submarines for days, put as high as nine the number of merchantmen torpedoed.

Survivors were from the crews of thre tankers and one freighter. How many of the other torpedoed ships went down and how many men were lost was not disclosed.

DEATH CLAIMS PAUL E. STURGES

Grocery Company Founder and Member of Pioneer Mansfield Family Succumbs.

Paul E. Sturges, 62, founder and president of the Central Fruit and Grocery company and member of a pioneer Mansfield family, died shortly after 1 p. m. Sunday at his home at 560 Overlook road.

Mr. Sturges had been confined to his home for the past three weeks with a heart ailment. Members of the family and the family physician were present when death ended the career of the business and civic leader.

Son of Henry Hale and Mary Williams Sturges, Mr. Sturges was born in Mansfield Nov. 16, 1880. He lived his entire life in Mansfield.

His father was one of the early residents of the city and it was largely through his efforts that the state reformatory was brought here. Mr. Sturges' mother, now 91 years old, is still living in Mansfield.

Mr. Sturges founded the Central Fruit and Grocery company in 1899 and actively headed the firm until his death.

He had a number of other business, religious, and civic affiliations in the city. He was a director of the Mansfield Savings

Former Wife Of James Roosevelt Weds Whitney Heir

NEW YORK—(INS)—John Hay Whitney and his bride, the former Mrs. Betsey Cushing Roosevelt, were honeymooning today following their marriage yesterday at the home of the wealthy sportsman and financier's mother.

Whitney is director of the motion picture division of the office of the co-ordinator of inter-American affairs.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Harvey Cushing and the late Dr. Cushing, brain specialist, of Boston. She obtained an interlocutory decree of divorce from Captain James Roosevelt of the U. S. Marines by default in Los Angeles on March 7, 1940. The eldest son of the president and the present Mrs. Whitney were married in Brookline, Mass., on June 4, 1930, two days before his graduation from Harvard. They have two children, Sara Delano Roosevelt, 10, and Kate, 6.

FIRE HITS CAMP

CALLS LETTER TO AUDITOR A DISCHARGE

Crafton Says Mayor's Note To Kelley on 'Resignation' Constituted Dismissal.

WOLFF TAKES OVER

New Director on Job After Both He and Predecessor Report For Work.

Terming a letter from Mayor W. J. Locke to City Auditor Paul L. Kelley today as a "discharge," C. M. Crafton today stepped out as Mansfield's service-safety director, and Fred B. Wolff assumed the post.

The mayor's letter to Kelley said, in effect, that Crafton had resigned and that Wolff had been appointed to succeed him.

Kelley said the mayor's letter had the effect of removing Crafton from the city payroll, and of putting Wolff on it. Inasmuch as it was signed by the city's chief executive, he said, it had the authority of an order.

Both Wolff and Crafton were at City building this morning and both conferred with Locke.

Crafton saw Locke first. The mayor told him, he said, that he was accepting his verbal resignation. Crafton denied having resigned and said that Locke had refused a request that a formal notice of discharge be given.

When informed by Kelley of the mayor's letter, Crafton said that he would consider that the Army Ignores Opposition To 'Dumping Ground' Charges.

SAN FRANCISCO—(U.P.)—Lieut. Gen. John L. DeWitt, chief of the western defense command, indicated today that the army could not respect the wishes of nine inland governors who announced opposition to their states becoming "dumping grounds" for alien evacuees.

Disclosing that the army soon will designate additional strategic areas which certain groups must evacuate, DeWitt replied that "military necessity" must take precedence over civilian wishes.

It was believed the new orders might affect 200,000 enemy aliens on the west coast and their American born children. A presidential proclamation recently authorized the army to establish defense zones from which both aliens and citizens could be barred.

As Car Owners Rush To Buy 1942 Licenses

The rush to purchase license plates for automobiles started today in Mansfield, with long lines forming at sales counters in the offices of the Richland County Auto club. Shown above conducting the sales are Mrs. Geraldine Culler, club stenographer, and Frank Beverstock, club secretary-manager. Purchasers are Michael W. Heckel, jr., who lives on Beal road and who is shown in the foreground and G. M. Stimens, 526 Newman street, who is holding his 1942 plates in the background.

Local Draft Boards Start Reviewing 3-A Registrants

No Wholesale Call for 3-A Men Expected In Near Future As Many Are Drawn From 1-B Lists.

With their task of reclassifying men in 1-B and 4-F classes fairly well completed, the three local draft boards serving Mansfield and the rest of Richland county are starting this week to review the cases of men in the 3-A classification—those deferred because they have dependents.

Word came from Columbus today that the 330 local selective service boards in the state are starting to recheck lists to make men with minor visual and dental defects available for war service.

However, the three local boards have been rechecking their 1-B and 4-F lists with this in view for three weeks. It was believed that many men heretofore deferred for these minor defects would become available for immediate service under new physical standards.

After these men are re-checked, their numbers are to be forwarded to state headquarters. They later will be ordered to report to various induction centers for various physical tests. This step will determine whether they will be called up for service.

Review of the 3-A classes—approximately two-thirds of the 10,000 draft registrants in Richland county are in this classification—does not mean there will be any early wholesale call to service for 3-A men, draft officials pointed out.

However, the review is designed to provide a screening-out process, segregating those in 3-A who were recently married, those whose wives are working and who have no dependents, those supporting parents, those with one minor

FILES CHARGE

Cleveland Accuses Utility of 'Gouging' Consumers.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — The Ohio public utilities commission is in possession today of a 150-page brief prepared by the Cleveland law department which charges the East Ohio Gas company with an attempt to gouge city gas consumers under the cloak of war-time operating increases.

The gas company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, requested the commission for authority to increase its average domestic rate from 69 to 79 cents per thousand cubic feet.

Law Director Thomas A. Burke, jr., and Assistant Director Spencer W. Reeder, asserted the rate increase, which would cost 230,000 Clevelanders an estimated $1,250,000 a year, was "essentially a claim for excess war profits at the expense of the city of Cleveland."

Fifteen members of the banker's crew still are missing, and one died of exposure following rescue.

RUSH STARTS CAR TAG SALE

Auto Owners Form Waiting Line to Get License Plates on First Day.

These are days of rush action on the part of Mansfielders and Richland county folk.

They started paying income taxes with a rush and today the rush action followed on into the period for obtaining new automobile license tags.

A stream of auto owners kept clerks at offices of the Richland County Auto club busy beginning when the office opened this morning for the first day of issuing 1942 auto license tags.

Jack Berger, deputy registrar, said that when the office was opened at 8:30 a. m. 20 motorists were in line clamoring for tags with low numerals. Before the day is completed a total of 300 tags will be sold, he predicted.

First plates were purchased by A. R. Maxham, of 463 West Third street, who posted himself at the door at 8 a. m. Maxham is a former resident of Indiana and explained that his out-of-state plates expired Saturday.

New plates may be used today, Berger said, despite a warning on the wrapper which says they are not legal until March 10. This provision was repealed after the packages were printed.

Berger requested purchasers to bring either the title to the machine or a bill of sale with them to complete the transaction.

Ashland Soldier Killed, Another Hurt In Accident

An army ambulance that burst into flames following an accident near New Orleans, La., late Saturday night claimed the life of Wilbur Glen Snyder, 21, an Ashland county soldier stationed at a Louisiana training camp, and resulted in injuries to two companions, one an Ashland youth.

Two persons received minor injuries in Mansfield and Richland county mishaps while the weekend traffic toll in Ohio mounted to 10.

Also injured in the Louisiana accident were Robert H. Bowles, 20, of Ashland, and Edward Wheeler of Evansville, Ind. They suffered burns and were reporteid resting comfortably today.

Snyder lived at Nankin, R. D. 1, according to the Ashland county draft board, and left for the south with a National Guard company in October, 1940. He and Bowles were members of Co. H, a hospital unit, it was learned. Information

70,000 Expected To Register For Sugar Rationing Books

More than 70,000 Richland countians will be required to register late this month for sugar-rationing books, it was estimated today as school officials prepared estimates to turn over to the county rationing board.

Boyd Robinson, county superintendent of schools set the figure for the county outside Mansfield and Shelby at 33,000. He said he obtained that figure by multiplying the county school registration by six and adding "a few for good measure."

The Mansfield and Shelby estimates are expected to boost the total for the county past 70,000. Richland county population in 1940 was 73,853.

Supt. W. L. Miller of Mansfield schools was preparing the city estimate today and planned to confer with principals of Mansfield school tonight before announcing figures for the city.

Under a tentative program set up by the Office of Price Administration, thousands of Richland countians must register for their rationing books at city and county elementary schools during a four-day period near the end of March.

Java Defenders Open Attack on Invading Force

United Nations Planes Batter Enemy Invasion Forces, Sink Barges; One Jap Column Reported Cut Off At Soebang.

BULLETIN

BATAVIA, Tuesday—(AP)—Destruction of all vital installations in this capital of the Netherlands East Indies has been started as a precautionary measure, Aneta agency said today, quoting an authoritative source. It added, however, that there was "no question" of any immediate threat to the city.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Java—(UP)—(By Transpacific Radiotelephone)—American fortress bombers today bombed Japanese invasion ships and Dutch armored flying wedges roared into action against three Japanese bridgeheads on the island of Java.

(By Associated Press)

Supported by a smashing aerial assault which has wrought havoc among Japanese on the beaches of Java, a desperately determined taxicab army has been rushed into a counter-attack and may already have fought a vital engagement against invaders who in two short days have swept to within 30 miles of Bandoeng, military headquarters of the United Nations.

"Attack and not defense must be our watchword," said an order of the day which disclosed that British troops had gone into action.

Joined also in the defense of this richest island of the Indies, were Americans, who with Australians and British made up some thousands of reinforcements for a slim Dutch army variously estimated at from 100,000 to 250,000.

Indicating that a crucial stage had been reached in the plans of the Dutch defenders, the Netherlands command said nothing concerning the land fighting.

But for all eyes to see was the stream of taxicabs and camouflaged trucks loaded with green-clad Dutch and Malayan reserve troops which rumbled down the volcanic slopes toward the northern coastal planes where the invaders had established footholds in three places on Saturday night.

(A Reuters dispatch to London from Java said there was reason to believe that in the counter-attack the Allied troops already had cut off the Japanese column which had penetrated 40 miles inland to Soebang, within 30 miles of Bandoeng.)

The immediate goal of the defense was to shatter the invaders before they could be reinforced

MYSTERY: Strange Planes Appear Over Batan Peninsula

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Strange planes which "may have been German-built" have carried out bombing attacks behind Gen. Douglas MacArthur's new battle line stretching across Batan peninsula in the Philippines, the war department said today.

The Japanese are known to have some of these German-made warplanes in reserve, a communique said, indicating that the Nipponese invaders were hard-pressed for aerial strength and were making use of Nazi reinforcements.

Recent communiques have indicated that Japanese air squadrons had been withdrawn from the Philippines for the battle of Java and the Dutch East Indies nearly 2,000 miles to the southwest.

The planes suspected of being German and which bombed MacArthur's rear-line positions—without inflicting damage—were three twin-engined bombers with "unusual markings," it was said.

"They were painted black with white crosses on the wings," the communique stated. "They may have been German-built planes, some of which Japanese is believed to have had in reserve."

MacArthur, with only a handful of P-40 fighter planes, has virtually no weapons to challenge Japanese fighters, heavy bombers and dive-bombers in the air over Batan except his anti-aircraft guns which have shot down many of the enemy's planes.

For the past 24 hours a lull has prevailed on the Batan front with "practically no ground operations" as the American and Filipino

CONFESS: Nazis Admit Army On Defense Against Soviet

(By Associated Press)

The Hitler high command gave the German people today an inkling of the scope of the Russian counter-offensive, with the added admission that the Reich's armies were fighting only defensively.

The first sentence of the daily war communique, confessing this loss of initiative, said: "In the Crimea, on the Donets front and southeast (from Leningrad) to Lake Ilmen, defensive fighting still continues."

It was one of the broadest admissions thus far of the Red army's striking power.

The communiques from Berlin, Rome and Cairo unanimously reported patrol activity in Eastern Libya, the British declaring that a small Axis column was repulsed by artillery fire east of El Mechili. Rome outdid Berlin in reporting that the Germans had destroyed 12 British planes. Berlin claimed only 10.

Both Rome and Berlin reported the customary air attacks on Malta.

In the western air and sea warfare, the Germans said two convoys were "dispersed" by gunfire from the French shore of the English channel. The Hitler command reported a February total of 79 merchant ships totaling 525,400 tons in which submarines were credited with 66 sinkings of 448,400 tons.

A British motor torpedoboat attack on a German ship in the English channel was admitted in the

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—Wendell Willkie feels very badly because we do not carry the fight to the enemy. In fact he says it "sickens" him.

But he doesn't say where we are going to carry our forces; how we are going to get them there and supply them afterward; what are we going to use for weapons, or how it will affect our own plans against an enemy offensive here and those of our allies elsewhere.

Gen. Johnson.

These questions all have to be answered before we start an overseas attack. I don't know the answers to some of them—but I'll bet I know more about those answers than does Willkie.

The difference is that I have no political opinion on the matter and Willkie is jockeying for position as candidate of a great political party.

I do not mean that this would consciously affect his judgment—much. I do believe that he is not professionally equipped to give a worthwhile opinion on this vital question.

Nobody knows what the year 1942 will bring forth. It is not likely to be good. But good, bad or indifferent, it just isn't in the cards for us to undertake a major offensive on foreign shores during 1942. That is the almost unanimous professional opinion in our services.

That doesn't mean that there is not going to be plenty of action. It will be a year of "excursions and alarums" — raids and counter arids — and these may leave our relative position in the sea and the air materially improved—and it may not.

For example, there is a persistent rumor with nothing substantial that I can learn to support it that we are going to give the toyhouse Japanese cities a good churning over from the air. That is why I thought the president wanted people to get out their globes for his speech.

Maps on Mercator's projection fool most people on distances. But you can see on a globe at a glance that the shortest distance between two points on the earth's surface is the arc of a great circle—a circle that goes around the earth at its greatest diameter.

Thus, because of the deception of maps and because we usually go to Japan by way of Hawaii, most people think that is the most direct way. But if you look at a globe you can see that going from Seattle by way of the Aleutian islands and down the east coast of Asia the distance to Tokyo is only two-thirds the distance to Manila.

More accurately, at about two-thirds of the distance from Seattle to Manila you pass through Tokyo.

Now the Russians have a good air base at Vladivostok and lesser ones off Kamchatka only a few miles from our shores. If a few squadrons of four motor bombers could use those bases, they could do a lot of damage to Japan.

Hitler and the sun emperor, by sinking shipping of four coasts and other antics like the bombing of the oil base at Aruba are very obviously trying to keep our air and naval forces close to our coasts and the Panama Canal.

If by a sudden attack from the north we gave the Japs somethings very serious to think about in the north Pacific, it might be carrying their own game back to them and weaken them in the East Indies.

Perhaps the logic of this is the best source of this unconfirmed rumor but, whether that be so or not, military and naval Washington is stirring with some kind of hushed expectancy that usually precedes action which nobody can talk about.

Launch Hearings on New Tax Measure

PAY HIKE FOR ARMED FORCES NEAR SHOWDOWN

Legislation Looms on Issue as Congress Studies Wartime Problems.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A new and potentially explosive issue — increased pay for men in the armed forces— appeared on the legislative horizon today as congress began its third month deeply immersed in wartime problems and controversies.

Discussed in closed committee sessions for months, the pay questioned threatened to become a live legislative problem as congress tried to complete repeal of the troublesome self-pension law and to reach a settlement on the controversy over price regulations for farm products.

Introduced by Senator Johnson (D-Colo), the military pay bill has been the subject of intermittent hearings since last November 17 but members of the senate military committee said they were now nearing a showdown on its terms.

Johnson originally proposed comprehensive basic increases from privates and seamen to generals and admirals, but several committee members predicted that if any bill finally was laid before the senate it would provide benefits only for those in the ranks, possibly including second lieutenants and ensigns.

As thus contemplated, the basic pay of selectees inducted into the army would become $42 a month, instead of the present $21. They would continue to receive that amount throughout the first year, whereas their pay now is increased to $30 at the end of three months. However, the present 10 percent increase in basic pay after one year's service would be eliminated.

The proposed increases in enlisted grades in the army and navy would bring top pay for army master sergeants and chief petty officers of the navy to $138 a month instead of the present $126, with corresponding boosts for interim grades.

Sponsors said this program for enlisted men would cost about $288,000,000 additionally yearly, but some senators pointed out that tripling the size of the army and increasing the size of the navy would boost these expenditures greatly.

Gingerly avoiding any public commitments, several members said pressure was being brought to bear to pigeonhole the measure in committee for fear that once it was brought to the floor there might be runaway efforts to increase the pay of fighting men far beyond these figures.

DIES IN CHURCH

Mrs. Belva Rooks Stricken While Attending Service.

Stricken with a heart attack while she was attending church services Sunday morning at St. Luke's Lutheran church, Mrs. Belva Leone Rooks, 39, of 115 Prospect street, died a few minutes later at the church. Efforts by two physicians to revive her were futile.

Mrs. Rooks was born in Sycamore, O., and came to Mansfield to live in 1934. She was an active member of St. Luke's Lutheran church, and the Ruth chapter, Order of Eastern Star.

Surviving are her husband, Kenneth P. Rooks, one sister, Mrs. Carl Schabel, Bucyrus and two brothers, Howard Smith, of Elkhart, Ind., and Emmit Smith, Gibsonburg, Pa.

Funeral services will be conducted from the Finefrock funeral home at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday, with Rev. H. S. Garnes officiating and the Ruth chapter, Order of Eastern Star, participating. Burial will be in Loudonville cemetery.

4 MANSFIELDERS ATTEND CLASS

They Receive Special Training for Ordnance Works Posts.

Four Mansfield youths are in the special class of 25 students receiving training at Heidelberg college, Tiffin, for work as laboratory technicians at the Plum Brook Ordnance Works near Sandusky.

The course is being sponsored by the U. S. department of education and students are exempt from all instructional cost and laboratory fees. It is believed this training for a specific type of work for a war industry is unique among colleges of the nation.

The 25 members of the class were chosen from a field of 60 applicants, and all had particularly good high school records. The Mansfield boys in the class are, Robert Mutsch, 108 Mendota street; Frank Pival, 262 Home avenue; Jack Vesper, 113 North Diamond street, and Charles Atton, 243 Park drive.

NELSON TO AIR DRIVE TONIGHT

Hint Speech Designed To Put Management, Labor In Fighting Mood.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Production Chief Donald Nelson delivers what promises to be a "tough" speech tonight to outline a new victory production drive and put workers and management of war plants in a fighting mood.

The speech will be short—from 9:45 to 10 p. m., (EWT), on the Blue network's "For America We Sing" program. But his associates hinted that it would be packed with a "wallop."

The industrial blueprint for victory that we will stress includes the 168-hour week for plants—full 24-hour, seven day production—and ways for the "soldiers of production" to accelerate the manufacture of war materials.

The keynote of the address will be the "Urgency of Tomorrow" which President Roosevelt cited in a letter to Nelson in demanding increased productive capacity to meet the requirements of total war.

In addition to the full production week, Nelson's program, as devised by his war production board, includes awards to labor and management for outstanding achievements and creation of joint labor-management plant committees to consider suggestions for increased output.

Nelson wants every laborer and manager to feel a personal responsibility for attaining the 1942 goals of 60,000 airplanes, 45,000 tanks and 8,000,000 tons of merchant ships.

PREDICTS FURTHER SHORTAGE OF AVAILABLE CIVILIAN GOODS

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Delegates to the Ohio conference on labor in war took home with them today a government warning to look for worse shortages of consumer goods and prepare to cope with them.

Daniel A. West, director of the consumer division in the office of price administrator, predicted that the shortages would be "more severe than we could have imagined a few months ago."

Picturing the economic world as upside down, he said:

"No amount of income is going to allow most of us to buy tires, legally. No pay raise will be enough, in a few months, to buy the wife a pair of silk stockings or put more than your ration of sugar in the pantry."

Half the nation's economic resources must be applied to winning the war, West added.

Nevertheless, he declared, the available civilian goods and services must be divided fairly among the population. Such an equitable distribution, he said, "is as important to the winning of this war as the production of fighting machines."

Earlier, the 900 representatives of all branches of labor, participating in the two-day conference, heard federal security administrator Paul V. McNutt declare labor disputes and federal-state controversies over jurisdiction of government bureaus must stop.

"Basic production must not be halted by inter-union rivalry," he said. "This is true for labor and it is equally true for government."

Also represented at the sessions at Ohio State university were the Ohio State Federation of Labor, Ohio CIO council, the railway labor organizations, the war department and the war production board.

Up and Down the Street

The stork had a busy week-end in Mansfield. It stopped nine times at General hospital and at three residences. There were nine boys and three girls in the week-end deliveries. At the hospital, the baby ward was the busiest it has been in weeks. An outbreak of scarlet fever there resulted in a quarantine of the ward which was lifted last week.

With the public being asked to conserve both paper and rubber, the Richland county sheriff's office is in a dilemma. For several months deputies in the office have been erasing the names on envelopes for warrants and subpoenas and using the envelopes many times. The operation, however, requires a large number of rubber erasers. Now the officers are trying to decide whether it will be of more service to the government to save envelopes and use erasers or save erasers and us more envelopes.

Although Mansfield's traffic squad is seven months old, its members have not yet received revolvers ordered for them last August. Priorities and the need for guns for military work have prevented the police department from obtaining guns for the men. In the meantime, they have been using the heavy, service revolvers which veteran members of the force have loaned them. Priorities also delayed the delivery of uniforms for the three new members appointed early last month but the uniforms arrived yesterday.

Kent L. Hodges, 18, of 100 Second street, Shelby, finally has been accepted by the Army after eight attempts. Sergeant Hobart Ellifritt, of the Mansfield Army Recruiting Station, said that the Shelby youth had attempted to enlist in the Army in Cleveland, Dayton, and Columbus, as well as the Mansfield station on three separate occasions. Each time he was rejected because he has artificial teeth. However, because of new regulations permitting acceptance of would-be enlistees with serviceable artificial teeth, Ellifrit told Hodges Saturday he was accepted. "He was overjoyed," said Ellifritt. Hodges will leave this week for Fort Benjamin Harrison, along with two other recent enlistees, Richard H. Keiser, 19, of 170½ North Main, and Milton R. Steiner, 22, R. D. 1, Nankin.

WIDOW, 65, DIES

Mrs. Leona Oakes Had Lived In Mansfield All Her Life.

Mrs. Leona Gallagher Oakes, 65, widow of Gilbert M. Oakes who died last June, succumbed yesterday at her home, 386 Henry street, after a prolonged illness.

Born in Mansfield July 10, 1876, she spent her entire life here and was a member of the First Lutheran church and the Spanish War veterans auxiliary.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Ruth Hunter; two sons, Gail and Harold of Mansfield, and three grandchildren.

The body was taken to the Finefrock funeral home where Rev. Grover Swoyer will conduct services tomorrow at 3 p. m. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

INFANT DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hamlin Succumbs; Rites Tuesday.

Ramona Carolin Hamlin, six-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Hamlin, died Sunday at the family home, 868 Millsboro road, after a brief illness of pneumonia.

The child was born Sept. 1, 1941, at Mt. Vernon. Surviving are the parents, Willam E. and Pearl Lang Hamlin, and both grandmothers, Mrs. Lena Hamlin, of Mansfield and Mrs. Dorothy Lang of Frazeeburg, O.

The body will remain at the Jones Memorial until 3:30 p. m. Tuesday when services will be held at the Seventh Day Adventist church on Cline avenue. Rev. Jay M. Hoffman will officiate. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

HOUSE GROUP EYES HIGHER WAR INCOME

Studies Proposal To Raise Additional Nine Billions In New Revenue.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—American taxpayers—with only 12 days before the deadline for this year's income tax returns—will get a preview tomorrow of what total war against the Axis will cost them next year.

After weeks of postponement, the house ways and means committee, which originates all tax legislation, begins hearings tomorrow on the new tax bill. Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., will be the first witness and will explain new levies by which the treasury hopes to increase tax revenues to $27,000,000,000 annually.

Higher individual and corporation income taxes, excise taxes, social security taxes and a plan for "plugging" existing tax loopholes probably will form the basis of the new program to raise $9,000,000,000 in new revenue.

Formation of the new tax program is expected to be a long process. In normal times it usually requires months before such a bill is ready for the president's signature. Today, in addition to the problem of obtaining more money for the huge war spending program, there is the fear among many fiscal officials of distastrous inflation. To combat that there have been many suggestions for payroll withholding taxes and compulsory savings plans. The treasury is not expected to propose such devices, but the house committee probably will hear many witnesses on courtless proposals for financing the war program and averting inflation.

The house votes today on a bill providing government war risk insurance for property that may be subjected to enemy attack. It would establish a war damage corporation with a $1,000,000,000 insurance authorization.

The senate, which has been tied up for a week in a farm dispute over control of agricultural crop prices, is expected to get rid of the "pensions for congressmen" law today. Final action on repeal of the law, which caused one of the stormiest political controversies in recent years, is scheduled. The repealer is attached to a minor naval bill which already has house approval.

War Production Hit By Strikes During February

NEW YORK—(INS)—Strikes in defense industries during February cost the nation 2,028,824 manhours or sufficient time to build 2,000 dive bombers, the National Association of Manufacturers reported today.

The association said that labor had reverted to a policy of "strikes as usual" despite the critical war situation.

According to the association's statistics the number of men involved in defense strikes increased from 15,512 in January to 70,905 last month. February brought a decline in time lost through strikes in non-defense factories, the association said.

'TAXICAB ARMY' BATTLES JAPS INVADING JAVA

from the sea, and the invaders were reported to have suffered enormous losses already.

A special Dutch communique said that nearly all the Japanese lighters engaged in landing troops and tanks from 20 transports yesterday near Rembang, easternmost of the three invasion points, were sunk in swooping attacks by Dutch fighting planes.

A tank was fired while being unloaded and fell into the sea. Others, landed, were set afire. The suggestion here was that the Dutch were using a sort of incendiary bomb, perhaps gasoline-filled missiles.

A Reuters dispatch from Bandoeng, reporting British troops in action against the foe, said there was reason to believe that Allied forces had knifed through the supply line of a Japanese column which had driven 40 miles inland to capture Soebang.

Soebang, less than 30 miles northeast of Bandoeng, headquarters of the United Nations command, fell to the Japanese within the first 24 hours of their invasion.

"Japanese troop casualties may be reckoned in the thousands and their losses in tanks, armored cars and artillery in the hundreds," wrote the Reuters correspondent. "But still they come on.

"If the Allied forces in Java had been about twice as strong, the Japanese attack would almost certainly have been doomed to failure."

The Dutch command, giving no fresh details on the fighting by land, said that one of its motor torpedoboats had sunk a Japanese flotilla leader—a large destroyer—by night in the eastern part of the Java sea.

An order of the day to British troops in Java said, ". . . the Japanese . . . are likely to be in superior numbers. They fight better on attack than on defense, and therefore our best chance is to attack whenever we can. Attack and not defense must be our watchword . . ."

As British Imperials, Americans and Filipinos were fighting only delaying actions in Burma and the Philippines, the present main effort of the United Nations pivoted on Java.

A London military commentator said that the British still were holding their Sittang river line northeast of Rangoon in Burma and that the Japanese still were unable to organize a new offensive.

It was conceded, however, that the enemy probably could outflank the Sittang river line on its north and knife through the railway leg of the Burma road.

Rangoon, now deserted by all but soldiers, looters and incendiarists, has been virtually given up As a port of entry for supplies to the battling Chinese it already had been nullified.

Stabbing again into the Indian ocean, Japanese naval planes were reported by Tokyo to have made their first attack on Christmas island, a pinpoint British possession, about 220 miles south of the western end of Java.

With the bloody fight raging in Java, the United Nations' last barricade against the Japanese drive toward Australia, representatives of Australia, New Zealand and other United Nations reached important decisions on "new principles of high strategy," a Melbourne dispatch said.

If the New Zealand government approves the secret decisions of the advisory war council at Melbourne—as it is likely to do—strong representations for their acceptance in high strategy will be forwarded to President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill

The Dutch forces—backbone of the United States in Java—were training every effort to check the headlong rush of unknown thousands of Japanese troops whose transports had run the gantlet of warships and warplanes to landings in extreme western, middle western and middle eastern Java

Taxis commandeered as troop carriers poured to the fronts with the green-clad soldiery of Queen Wilhelmina, mingling with trucks and every other available means of road transport. Fighting raged along the northern coast and on the inland plains.

The Japanese were bent on smashing the islands' three resistance centers—Batavia, Bandoeng and Soerabaja—within the shortest possible time.

Upon the battle, joined during the week-end after the Japanese won passage to the island over the guns of outnumbered naval forces of the United Nations, hung the fate of the Netherlands East Indies and, ultimately, the position of the United Nations in the south west Pacific.

The Dutch reported that warships and planes of the United Nations in three days of terrific assaults sank or damaged at least 27 ships out of an invasion armada of 50 transports and 20 warships. Dutch loss of two cruisers and two destroyers was acknowledged.

A Japanese naval spokesman said that five United Nations cruisers and 10 destroyers had been sunk in naval battles off Java between last Friday afternoon and Sunday morning—"virtual annihilation of the naval forces in the southwest Pacific" was what he called it.

But this was not the first time the Japanese had made such claims.

Tokyo imperial headquarters said that a heavy cruiser and two British destroyers were sunk yesterday in the Java sea, off Batavia. It was not clear whether the Japanese naval spokesman's claim of five cruisers and 10 destroyers included these.

The Japanese admitted loss of only one transport sunk and three others "stranded," and said that these were eliminated only after they had discharged their troop cargoes.

Imperial headquarters in Tokyo broadcast that the Japanese in Java were steadily extending the sphere of their operations after making landings "in the face of stiff resistance offered by the enemy at sea, in the air and on land."

Report Destruction Of Jap Barges

BANDOENG, Java — (AP) — Nearly every one of the Japanese barges engaged in landing troops and tanks from 20 transports near Rembang was sunk yesterday when Dutch fighting planes swooped upon them, a special communique of the Netherlands fighting services said today.

The barges were heavily loaded with men and material, the communique said. One tank was set afire while being unloaded and was dropped into the sea.

Other tanks which already had been landed were set afire.

Japanese Launch New Drive In Burma

MANDALAY, Burma—(UP)—Japanese invaders, checked in their frontal drive on the lower Sittang river, struck in force toward the north today, threatening to trap the weary defenders of southern Burma.

Moving "large forces" toward Shwe-Gyin, 50 miles up river from Pegu, the Japanese were attempting a flanking move timed for the "zero hour" of a big scale offensive across the Rangoon neck of Burma toward the Bay of Bengal.

Any break-through in the north would drive a wedge between Rangoon and Mandalay and overreach the imperial forces on the lower Sittang.

(Competent observers in London expressed frank doubt that Rangoon could be held for long and said the escape of the British forces in that area appeared unlikely.)

U. S. Recognizes Free French In Pacific

LONDON —(AP)— The United States has given partial recognition to Free French rule in the Pacific and is co-operating in the defense of French islands there, Gen. Charles de Gaulle's headquarters announced today. These islands are vital stepping stones along the Toure to New Zealand and Australia.

The Free French released a statement attributed to the United States consul general at Noumea, New Caledonia, which declared the United States government "would deal with Free French authorities in French authority"

De Gaulle's French national committee in London was named officially for the first time as the recognized authority governing the French Pacific possessions, although the United States maintained diplomatic relations with Marshal Petain's administration in Vichy.

France's island possessions in the Pacific are, primarily, New Caledonia and Oceania, and their importance to the United Nations lies in their position athwart American sea lanes to Australia.

70,000 Expected To Register For Sugar Rationing Books

bles was started today by the county tire rationing board which will administer the program. The rationing board planned to increase its working hours to handle the duties added by the car rationing program.

Richland county has been allotted 300 cars for March, April, and May. They will go primarily to business and professional people who need them in their work.

When the sugar rationing program gets under way, teachers and volunteer civilians will register every person for sugar cards except members of the armed forces, inmates of institutions, and persons confined to hospitals or other institutions.

Sugar rationing books, which will go out shortly after the registration period, will not be given to any person who has more than a two-month supply when the nation-wide registration begins, probably the last week in March.

Sugar users will be limited to eight ounces each per week, the War Production board announced.

One adult may register for an entire family, but a separate ration book will be issued for each member Servants, lodgers, and other persons living in the household, but not members of the family unit, must register individually.

Each individual will have to sign a statement declaring the amount of sugar he has Each ounce over two pounds per person will be considered above the "normal inventory."

President Manuel Quezon, in a stirring proclamation to Filipinos over the week-end, urged them to battle the invader behind his lines as well as on the battlefront in a "fight until death, and expel him from our land."

A small band of American and Filipino troops—a "lost detachment" cut off from MacArthur's main army of Batan 200 miles southward—has achieved an important victory in northern Luzon, a war department communique revealed Sunday.

Fighting on without thought of glory from mountain lairs and living off the land, the American and Filipino soldiers have driven the Japanese from a 45-mile stretch of the Abra valley between Cervantes and Bangued in guerrilla warfare.

CRAFTON SAYS HE'S 'FIRED,' LEAVES OFFICE

Claims Mayor's Letter To Auditor on 'Resignation' Constituted Discharge.

equivalent of an order for his removal from the city payroll. He said he had no statement to make "at this time."

Crafton had gone to Kelley's office after leaving the mayor, and arrived there as the auditor was opening the letter advising him of Wolff's appointment and repeating that his (Crafton's) "resignation" had been "accepted."

Mayor Locke had no comment to make except that he had appointed Wolff, that Wolff's bond had been approved and that the new director would start work immediately.

Although Crafton said that he would aid Wolff as much as he could by explaining to him the current problems of the city, neither Locke nor Wolff seemed disposed to accept his aid.

"I appointed Wolff because he is an experienced man," said Locke.

Wolff said that Crafton had told him he would be back later today to "clear up a few matters of business."

The text of Locke's letter to Kelley, which Crafton said he considers a discharge, is as follows:

"Enclosed you will find a copy of the letter accepting the resignation of C. M. Crafton as service-safety director of the city of Mansfield and a copy of the letter appointing Fed B Wolff to this position, effective March 1, 1942."

This morning, when he arrived at City building, Wolff received formal written notice of appointment from the mayor.

The notice said.

"It is my pleasure to appoint you service-safety director of the city of Mansfield effective March 1, 1942 "

This letter was dated Feb. 28

Kelley said that Wolff had supplied bond, in the amount of $25,000, which was dated Feb. 26. The bond was taken out with the Holibaugh-Wolfe company, of which former Mayor Earl A. MacFarland is an official. It is the same company from which Crafton obtained his bond.

Feb 26 was the day after Locke handed Crafton, at a civic club dinner meeting, a note in which he advised him he was "accepting" his "resignation," which Crafton denied ever having made.

Crafton met Wolff in the corridor of the city hall this morning before the latter had seen the mayor. Both men were amiable, but the only comment made was by Wolff, who said:

"It's rather foggy out this morning."

Wolff then went into the mayor's office. He was in conference with Locke almost an hour.

Wolff said he had come to the city hall this morning because the mayor had assured him that the controversy with Crafton had been cleared up. He arrived about 20 minutes after Crafton had reported for duty.

Crafton's conference with the mayor was short. Later, when he left the building, Crafton went into the mayor's office where Locke was conferring with Wolff

He said afterwards that there was no discussion of the controversy but that he had told Wolff he would return later to help him with certain municipal matters.

After Crafton left, the new director did not go immediately into his office, but sat in Locke's office, receiving callers along with the mayor. Later he moved over to the service director's office and began handling routine business matters.

"I will attempt to carry out the duties of this office for the best interests of the public," said Wolff, "and I sincerely believe that I will be successful."

communique which said, however, that one of the little attackers was sunk.

Wrecked houses of the resort city of Staraya Russa, where 90,000 trapped Germans were said to be running out of food, lay within sight of the Red army today, Russian frontline dispatches reported, as the Russians tightened their cordon around the German 16th army.

The dispatches quoted a German prisoner as saying that Nazi morale in Staraya Russa, center of German communications on the northwestern front, had cracked during the past few days.

Staraya Russa is 280 miles northwest of Moscow and 140 miles south of Leningrad. Its fall to the Russians would be a heavy blow to the Germans besieging Leningrad, and to their fighting on the entire northwestern front.

Elsewhere the Russians were reported advancing on Smolensk in the face of German counter-attacks, and pushing on Dnieperopetrovsk, in the Ukraine.

It was disclosed in London that hundreds of Britain's 12-gun Hurricane planes were fighting on the Russian front, piloted by Red air force pilots taught to handle them by RAF fliers who now have returned to London.

Keep motor oil at the "full" mark Here's why . . .
The motor oil in your car does not one, but three jobs. It lubricates the engine . . . seals the pistons . . . cools the moving parts. It's true that your car will run even when the oil level is down considerably. But if you're running on 4 or 5 qts. when the motor was designed for 6, you're putting an extra burden on oil that already has plenty to do. AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, MARCH 2, 1942.

Remember that a blow-out now means more than possible serious injuries—you can't get another tire.

Oddity: Restaurant customer using less sugar than usual—even when there was plenty in the container.

Consolidating 16 federal housing agencies into one is a new version of the old "16 to 1" slogan popularized by William Jennings Bryan.

Enemy Planes Or 'False Alarm'

CONFLICT between versions of the Los Angeles blackout and air raid scare last week, as given by Secretary of Navy Knox and Secretary of War Stimson, can scarcely fail to have a disturbing effect along the west coast as well as elsewhere.

Secretary Knox expressed belief, presumably after investigation, that no enemy planes were flying over the Southern California area, but Secretary Stimson reached the "reasonable conclusion" that no less than fifteen planes, operated by enemy agents, were in the air over Los Angeles vicinity —probably from commercial bases in this hemisphere and likely without intent to drop bombs.

Even with meager information in regard to the care taken to guard against unauthorized plane flights, it appears strange that any considerable number of unidentified planes should be flying over large cities during the night, without means of learning something about them.

Nor is it satisfying that two men in high authority should publicize opposite views on the subject. It would seem much better if agreement could be reached as to the form of statement to be issued, or, if necessary, that official announcement be withheld pending further investigation.

What now appears probable is that there are enemy submarine bases in the Caribbean sea area, for Atlantic coast raiding purposes, and if there are also airplane bases on this hemisphere, from which enemy craft can operate over United States territory, it is highly important to discover their locations and potentialities.

More need be known about that California incident, and the ineffective use of anti-aircraft guns, before the matter is dropped as a "false alarm."

Gain Information From Labels

THE Office of Price Administration warns consumers that "in this period of stepped-up production and increased drain of essential materials, cuts in quality of consumer goods are almost certain to occur." But if you know your labels and look for them, you'll know what you are getting.

There are five grades named on the little purple stamps that the agriculture department puts on meat. "Prime" is tops, and there's not much of it. "Choice" is the best grade of beef commonly available. "Good" is the best that can be had at moderate prices. "Commercial" is good but requires careful cooking. "Utility" is the cheapest, wholesome but not tender—takes more cooking than any other. All the grades are proper food, but some naturally cost more, others take more work and more heat.

In vegetables, A is tops—fancy stuff. B is excellent but not quite so uniform or ripe, perhaps. C is standard and good quality, but not up to A and B. Anything below C is substandard, and must be so marked. It takes more time to look over and prepare.

There are many other labels for the buyer. "Mahogany" for instance, is one thing and "solid mahogany" something else. Garments labeled by the Consumers League are made under proper conditions. Many good things have no labels. But labels help and reading them is useful.

Sixteen Agencies Become One

SOME IDEA of the extent to which New Deal bureaucracy contributed to pre-war costs of operating the federal government—and placed countless thousands on the public payroll—is gained from the simple announcement that President Roosevelt has consolidated sixteen federal housing agencies into a single agency, under one directing head.

No explanation was given as to why there should have been sixteen agencies in the first place, although that number was probably not out of accord with other duplication and overlapping in federal departments.

Independent studies and surveys have been in agreement that no less than a couple of billion dollars in non-military expenditures could be lopped off without hampering efficiency.

Possibly the consolidation of sixteen "agencies" into one is a start. If so, the next moves in the same direction will be awaited with interest.

Peru's Inca Dictators

THE totalitarian state did not start with Hitler and Mussolini, or even in Japan. Peru before the Spanish conquest was as complete an example as one might hope to see. Under the Inca rulers individual freedom simply did not exist. The Peruvian had to work at whatever task the state set him. Without permission he could not even move to the next village. The land was equally divided, and all food and clothing were distributed by the government.

The difference between Peru and Nazi Germany is that in Peru the government was fairly administered for all. There were no slaves or favored classes. All officials were appointed by the Inca or emperor himself, who was supposed to be divine, like the mikado.

Such a system is like a pyramid standing on its point. All depended on the ability and disinterestedness of one man. Provision was made for every possibility but one—an unexpected force from outside. It came with Pizarro and his Spaniards, and under the unlooked-for impact the Inca system crashed into ruin. It sometimes seems as if this may be the fate of Nazi Germany.

How are loyal and disloyal Japanese to be distinguished between when even a patriotic Chinese citizen finds it necessary to wear a badge, "Chinese, please, not Japanese"?

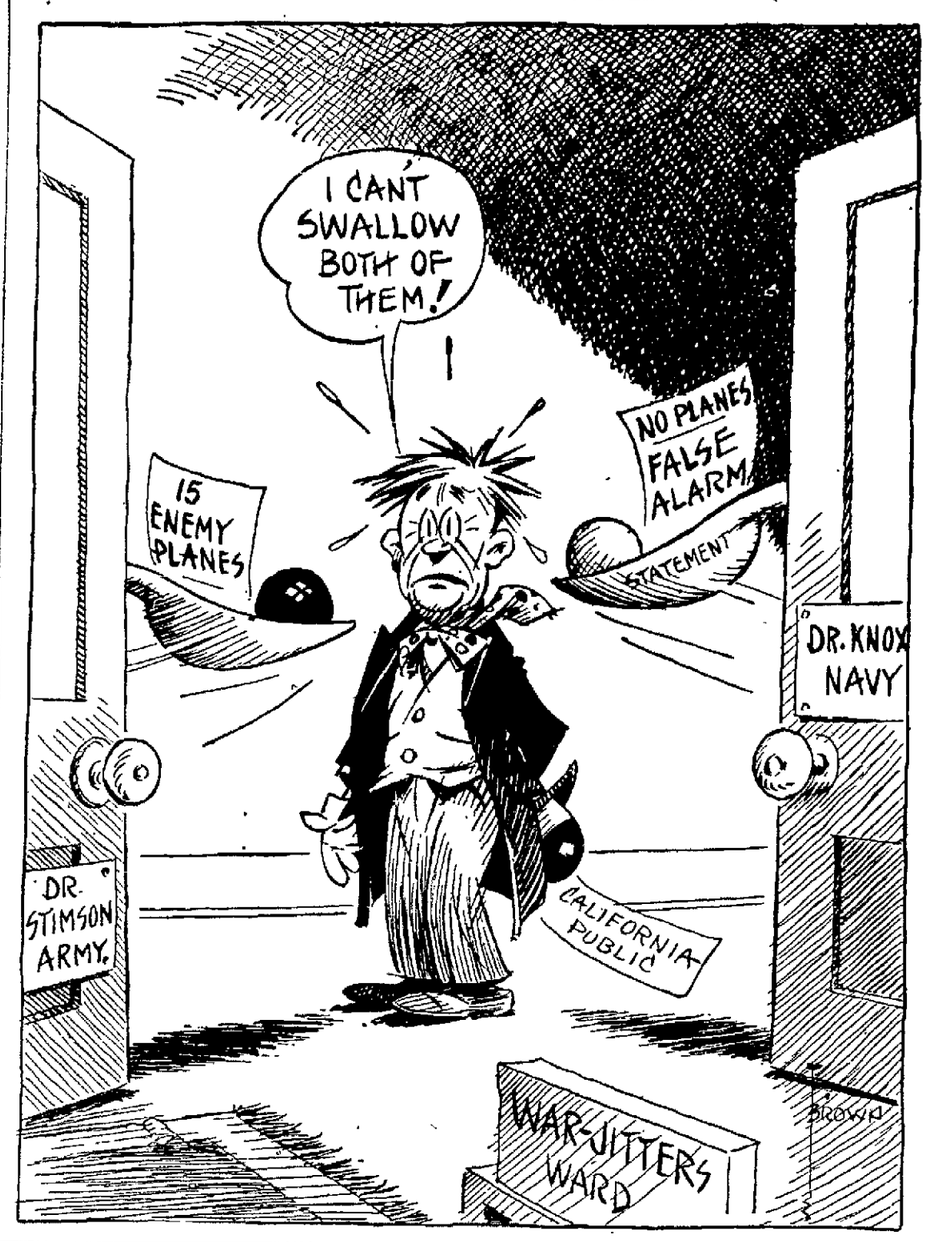
At least one scientist thinks it possible to postpone death 220 years—but it can't be done with that other sure thing, taxes.

It appears that there is also an impending shortage of quinine—so the bitter and the sweet may both be cut down.

It might have been cheaper, even better, to have pensioned some congressmen instead of electing them.

Add to difficulties of the English language the fact that new refrigerators have been frozen.

WHEN DOCTORS DISAGREE



When War Is Carried to Japan

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — In view of President Roosevelt's promise to carry the war to Japan, there is plenty of speculation in Washington as to just how this could be done. Opinion of the experts is that, sooner or later, the blow will be delivered via the bridge of islands across the North Pacific.

This is positively NOT a revelation of plans by the army or navy. Nothing of the sort, or of any other sort for that matter, is being disclosed. In the nature of things it could not be. It is the attempt of some experts outside the government to translate into action the president's remarks on the evening of Feb. 23, plus certain known production and geographical facts.

It is believed that this country can produce, in three months, as many bombing and fighting planes as Japan posseses. The geographical fact is that the chain of islands stretching out from Alaska and curving over the North Pacific affords a possible island by island advance somewhat comparable to that the Japs have been making in the East Indies.

It is contended that our bombers could be steadily advancing, supported by surface craft which would include carriers, and hence fighting planes. Eventually we would be within striking distance of Japan proper.

It is not regarded as of the utmost importance whether attacks on Japan proper could then be made. The point is that long before such a stage was achieved the Japs would have been forced to withdraw much of their air power from the present area of war in the Southwest Pacific in order to resist this threat in the Northwest Pacific.

THIS might not come in time to save Java, but, provided it achieved any success at all, it might easily be in time to save Australia and New Zealand.

Numerous objections are obvious. One is that if we can supply enough fighting and bombing planes for such an effort, backed by more old-fashioned sea power, why not aid directly in the fighting already in progress?

The answer to this was tersely put by the president himself. The line of supply to the East Indies is flanked by the Caroline and Marshall islands, whence the Japs could attack with land-based planes. The line of supply to this bridge of islands is not so threatened. For a long distance —precisely the distance which would be covered by the proposed highway to Alaska—it is in protected waters, and the inside channel from Puget Sound well up into the Panhandle of Alaska.

For all this distance the Japs might attack by submarines, and possibly long-range bombers. But they could not send fighters save by carrier, and would be subject to attack by our land-based planes all along the line. Even an attempt by the Japs, in force, to cut this line of communication would draw heavily on their striking power in the Southwest Pacific.

THIS would be the first time in the war, it is pointed out, that the United Nations would be picking the theater of war — fighting where WE wanted to fight instead where our enemies wanted to fight.

Assuming that the production figures are right—and there is no reason to question them — this sort of attack would not interfere with a continuance of supplies for the British and Dutch in the other war theaters. In fact it would impose little burden on our shipping facilities, as barges could be used very handily, perhaps even the concrete barges we are building so feverishly.

It might risk an all-out naval engagement, but that would of necessity cripple the Japs seriously in their Southwest Pacific operations.

Scrap Metal Needs.

Editor News-Journal:

We appreciate the efforts and help given by your urban and rural readers in the various programs that are helping get out iron and steel scrap so that the steel mills and foundries of the country may continue to operate at capacity.

Approximately 28,000,000 gross tons of iron and steel scrap are needed from the scrap yards to make 89,000,000 tons of steel ingots and over 20,000,000 tons of iron castings in 1942. That will make guns, tanks, ships, planes and ammunition to beat the Axis, and also provide for a minimum of our civilian needs.

We want to assure you and through you your many readers that our industry will prepare and expedite the scrap to the consumers without delay.

The scrap yards may be counted on to help auto wreckers dispose of their surplus stocks at prices approved by our government.

The supply of scrap is governed by federal regulation through the War Production board and therefore there can be no hoarding. Prices of all grades of scrap are set by the Office of Price Administration which has the authority of congress and therefore there can be no speculating for higher prices.

Our sole object is to Win the War!

Teacher's Job.

There should be no surprise that the government has chosen the school teachers of the country to do the job of rationing sugar. It is a task that requires tact and a sweet disposition, qualities which should always go with school teaching. There must be patience and the firm hand where needed, along with a nice use of the scientific method of discovering the truth.

Whether our school teachers will be able to remain popular with their neighbors while making difficult decisions involving the sweetness of the breakfast cup and the privilege of baking an angel-food cake for week-end guests is a question that cannot be answered for a few weeks.

Shall a maid who "sleeps out" be counted as a member of the household where she eats her sugar or where she sleeps? Shall the paying guest in the genteel home trying to make both ends meet be regarded as worthy of a precious card good for 12 ounces, more or less?—New York Times.

Sabotage Rampant In N. Y. Harbor, Sly Tricks Damage Vital Shipping

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Regardless of whether the U. S. naval inquiry really gets to the bottom of what happened to the Normandie, it remains a fact that sabotage of Allied shipping in New York harbor has been rampant.

In fact, operating under the very nose of the U. S. government and the police of the biggest city in the world, New York shipping has come to be one of the most explosive war problems inside the United States.

It hasn't leaked out, but many times ships loaded with war supplies have left New York, only to put back into port because of faulty loading of cargo. Saboteurs achieve this objective in various ways. One is to open a hose or cock in the hold of a vessel carrying wheat (tons of wheat are being shipped to Britain). The wet wheat then swells and has been known to crack open the seams of the ship.

Another common form of sabotage is to drive two small holes in drums of oil loaded on one side of the bottom of the ship. One hole lets the air in, the other hole lets the oil out. After the oil has leaked out of the drums, they are crushed by the pressure of the full drums above. This shifts the entire cargo and can cause the ship to list.

Biggest Waterfront.

HOWEVER, to get the inside story of what is going on, it is necessary to have the full picture. First, New York harbor, including adjacent New Jersey and Long Island, has 994 piers, of which about 934 are now in use, scattered over a total of 771 miles.

This waterfront has been a happy hunting ground for thugs and hoodlums; a sort of "foreign legion" for anyone who was in trouble in another city. If he pays for it, he can always get a union card and no questions asked.

The Brooklyn side of the waterfront has been in the grip of an Italian gang, while the Manhattan front is ruled by the Irish. Never have racket-busting Tom Dewey or other New York clean-up officers ever touched the waterfront.

Furthermore, the U. S. government, now almost the sole shipper, has no control over the men on the piers. They belong to the International Longshoreman's association, and are hired not through "hiring halls" as on the West Coast, but through a "shape-up" system. By this the union boss picks the men he wants to work, usually his old friends. There is little rotation of employment.

There are also several stevedore contractors, of which perhaps the largest is the Jarka corporation, headed by Franz Jarka, born in Hungary, but a naturalized American. Captain of the Hamburg-Amerika Liner Vaterland during the last war, Jarka was interned as an alien enemy from 1917 through 1918. His stevedoring company is the agent for United States Lines, Bethlehem Steel, Moore-McCormack Lines, Bull Line, Isthmian Lines (which is U. S. Steel), and the Arrow Line.

Former officers in the German and Italian naval reserves also operate other stevedore companies under an arrangement by which the A. F. L. permits men to sign for a year.

There are a few private protective agencies which supply night watchmen for the steamship lines. But the guards supplied by these agencies don't have to be checked by the government and don't even have to be U. S. citizens.

Admiral Andrews.

AS FAR as the government is concerned, several agencies are supposed to keep an eye on the New York waterfront, among them the special agents of the treasury, U. S. customs intelligence, FBI, military intelligence, harbor police, the agents of the New York port authority, and, last of all, naval intelligence.

Formerly the coast guard did a fairly good job, but now it has been taken over by the navy so that Captain Bayless of the coast guard is directly under Admiral Adolphus Andrews. Andrews is famous in Washington for his beautifully-tailored clothes and for having been aide to presidents of the United States. He was aide to Teddy Roosevelt, to President Harding, escorted Harding on his tragic trip to Alaska, aide to Coolidge, and commanded the presidential yacht Mayflower.

But how much he may know about the disagreeable and dirty job of cleaning up a waterfront is problematical. However, with the government virtually the only shipper out of New York, all of the information picked up from stool-pigeons, the underworld, worried citizens and the newspapers, eventually finds its way to naval intelligence.

Naval intelligence has an extremely high standard in selecting its men. They have to be college graduates and third or fourth generations Americans — though what a college degree has to do with smelling out sabotaging wharf rats no one knows. If you enter the office of naval intelligence, you will find a group of fine looking, alert young men, all of them at desks and typewriters, apparently compiling data which could be done by older men or female stenographers.

Most of them look too fresh out of Harvard or Annapolis to know anything about hanging around a waterfront saloon or a dive where the real naval intelligence of the waterfront is picked up.

How About the Budget?

IN ONE CASE naval intelligence was informed that workmen, slinging a DeGaussin cable around a ship to nullify magnetic mines, were purposely throwing materials into the water, thus losing yards of expensive cable. It was suggested to naval intelligence that it would be easy to hide a motion picture camera in a nearby warehouse and take pictures which would prove deliberate sabotage.

Whereupon, naval officers engaged in a debate as to whether their budget permitted them to buy a camera, and whether they ought to take the initiative in investigating the reported sabotage.

On another occasion, Gordon Pyke, crack special agent of the treasury, caught the Spanish liner Isla de Teneriffa surreptitiously loading 50 radio sets, 100 drums of lubricating oil and a quantity of raw silk—all without export permits. And although the treasury had arranged to requisition the ship as a penalty, the state department, always friendly to Franco, intervened and let the vessel sail after pleading nolo contendere and paying a fine.

Chief move of naval intelligence so far is to require office workers along the waterfront, plus ferryboat and tug boat crews, to have credentials. Stevedores and longshoremen have been ordered to obtain identification cards, but there have been delays in enforcing this measure.

At present there are two police agencies doing a good job on the New York waterfront. The special treasury agents and U. S. customs intelligence have made a life work of knowing all the criminals and shady characters along the waterfront.

Suggestion to Uncle Sam: Why not let naval intelligence men stick to data on guns, armour plate, etc., on which they are experts; and detail the hard-boiled boys who have legged it up and down the waterfront for years, to step in and clean up this hot-bed of sabotage in New York harbor?

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Answering the mail orders:

H. C. S., Keene, N. H.—Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey had an answer all ready when I asked him why the 6,500 members of selective service local boards are asked to serve without pay. It is simply that men who have studied draft systems from the beginning of time found that it was successfully prosecuted only when it was as nearly as possible purged of all politics. Had these 6,500 jobs been paying propositions, it would have been impossible to keep the appointments out of the political patronage column.

Even small salaries would have been sought and fought for by political hangers-on. Then what happens? Political pressure is brought to bear to keep this man out of the draft, to force that one in. Selective service officials are among the first to admit that the members of local boards are making a big sacrifice in time and energy, without any remuneration whatever, and very little thanks, to serve their country. They wish it could be otherwise they say, but no plan has been advanced yet which would make remuneration possible without opening the door to evils which might make the draft a political shambles.

W. F., Santa Monica, Calif.—There now are more than 100,000 civilian airplane pilots in the United States, compared with about 63,000 at the end of 1940. The vast increase this last year was attributed to the Civil Aeronautics association's civilian pilot training program. Last year more than 4,500,000 passengers were carried by domestic airlines. This was an increase of 1,300,000 over 1940. Growing confidence in airline safety and the necessity for more rapid transportation in the national defense effort are the explanations given for the great increase by the airlines. The War Production Board already has taken precautions to see that priorities do not affect the efficient operation of the commercial airlines. Similar precautions are being taken to prevent impairment of service in all transportation other than that by private automobile.

K. A. P., Jacksonville, Fla.—The new army regulations regarding teeth are pretty interesting. Formerly, the Army required every man to have at least six chewing teeth "opposed to each other." Now for general service in all branches, the only requirement is that a man is able to masticate Army chow, no matter whether the old molars are real or false. The examination does NOT consist of making a doubtful candidate sit down to a meal of beef and beans. The examining dentists just examine and pass on their opinion as to whether the fellow needs a straw or a rifle.

T. L., Chester, Pa.—The War Production board priorities division says you can get all the sugar you need to keep bees alive and operating. All that is necessary is to make application to the WPB sugar section, setting forth all the facts and circumstances. Honey is considered one of the most important substitutes for sugar and the WPB is eager to see that honey production is increased, not diminished.

TODAY IN HISTORY

This date in 1793 marked the birth of Sam Houston. Adopted as a boy by an Indian chief, he was nicknamed "the Rover." General Houston, during the struggle for Texan independence, not only became the military hero but also president of the Texas republic. After its annexation, Houston became congressman from the state, 1845-1859.

A Farmer's Diary

Old Tarnation

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

TARNATION, the pet turken, is aging, but she still keeps up a brave front. To hear her singing and scratching about the hen roost—to see the big brown egg she lays every day—nobody would suspect that she is as old as this column . . . hatched in 1938.

It is literally true that she has gone around sticking her neck out all that time—and getting by with it. Now, even at her age, she has some of the foibles of a spring chicken. She wears her feathers like a strapless evening gown—I've seen them in pictures —and her red breast and crop are exposed to the wintry winds so much that by all sane reasoning she should have died of pneumonia long ago.

In the first place—as you may remember—we got a setting of turken eggs from a neighbor who claimed their meat was especially delicious. From three scrawny turken chicks, one survived to grow to maturity. The day was set for killing her, the Sunday pot was heating. When we went to get her she had just laid an egg! So far as the children were concerned, that settled it. She was "too ugly," "too cute," "too wise," and "too valuable as a layer." Her life must be spared. We never did find out how turken tasted.

A year afterward, when we were ambitious to sell eggs to a hatchery, Tarnation went to stay at grandmother's. She spent a year away—then she was indiscreet about where she scratched and wallowed. To spare grandma's flower beds, we brought her home again.

She has set herself apart from the other hens, and chosen a low roost near the door, where even after dark, nobody could enter or leave the place without passing under the close scrutiny of her shiny eyes. Whether she calls it guardian duty, whether the air is better, or whether she is just a plain lover of solitude, we have no way of knowing. But there she sits, her flaunting white topknot askew and her wrinkled old red neck thrust forward whenever the door opens—a shocking sight and one to strike consternation, pity and amazement to any human being. Even a chicken thief would lose his zest at sight of such an ominous looking fowl.

She is tame. I picked her up and stroked her ugly head. She rewarded me with a confidential murmur. Among the big white eggs of the English Leghorns, the single one stands out plainly whenever the eggs are gathered. How old will a chicken get, I wonder?

News Happenings From Communities In Richland County, Vicinity

FIREMEN CALLED AS BUCYRUS CAR AND HOME BURN

Residence Damaged By Fire Which Breaks Out Soon After First Alarm.

BUCYRUS—At work extinguishing a blazing automobile Saturday city firemen were called upon to fight a fire in a residence before returning to headquarters.

While attempting to save the automobile which belonged to Alva Robbins, 809 East Mary street, firemen received word that the residence of Charles Salhaney, 311 West Mansfield street, was on fire. The latter blaze, which started in the kitchen, occupied firemen for two hours and caused damage estimated at $800.

Firemen were unable to save the automobile, a 1929 model sedan.

BUCYRUS—Morris Knisley, North Robinson, Democrat, has been appointed the new member on the Crawford county board of elections.

The appointment, effective at once, is for a two-year period. Bert Wilson, Galion, Republican, was reappointed this week.

BUCYRUS—Joseph Neff, Bucyrus R. D. 1, was treated at the office of a Bucyrus physician Saturday for bruises and shock suffered in an automobile collision on Route 4, five miles north of Bucyrus.

The accident occurred when Neff, driving a truck proceeding south, slowed down to turn into a drive at the Jane Neff farm. His truck was struck in the rear by a car driven by Mrs. Frank Roehr, South East street resident, sheriff's deputies reported.

BUCYRUS—Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Solt and their two sons left Saturday for a two weeks' vacation trip to Florida. Upon their return Dr. Solt, who was recently commissioned a lieutenant commander in the U. S. Navy, will leave for service with the united forces.

ATTEND FARM BUREAU DINNER

Five From Richland To Be Honored At Banquet Tonight.

Five Richland County Farm Bureau and Farm Bureau Cooperative association officials and employes will attend a dinner tonight at the Smithville Inn, honoring district workers in the organizations who signed up 10 or more new members during the past year.

NAMED JUSTICE

NEW LONDON—Julius Holden, well known Fitchville township farmer, has been appointed justice of the peace by the Fitchville township trustees. Holden held this position in the township up until two years ago, when ill health forced him to relinquish the post. Popular demand caused his reappointment by the trustees when his health again permitted.

'42 PLATES ON SALE

BUCYRUS — Ohio's new 1942 green and white license plates made their appearance in Bucyrus Sunday when the tags went on sale at the offices of M. B. Morrisey and Fred Trautman, registrars. Business was slow on the first day of the sale, registrars reported.

RITES TUESDAY

BUCYRUS — Funeral services will be held at 9 a. m. Tuesday in Holy Trinity Catholic church for Charles Schott, Bucyrus machinist, who died at his home here Saturday. Burial will be in the Catholic cemetery.

Survivors include two brothers, Lawrence and Francis of Bucyrus; six sisters, Mrs. Jerome Fisher and Mrs. Roy Walter of Bucyrus; Mrs. H. A. Kroechley of Bellevue; Mrs. Margaret McCaddon of Denver, Col., and Antoinette and Anna Schott at home.

ENDS OPERATION

Ashland C. of C. to Disband; Junior Group Takes Over.

ASHLAND — After operating for 27 years, the Ashland Chamber of Commerce has dissolved. Disbanding of the organization was voted at a special meeting at which an investigating committee appointed a week ago to study such a proposal unanimously recommended that the C. of C. be dissolved.

A budget of $7,500 requiring 300 members with annual dues of $25 was declared by the investigating committee necessary for the successful operation of a Chamber of Commerce. Such a budget, it was believed by the investigating committee, could not be supported by enough business men and manufacturers. Only 35 attended the meeting on the proposal of disbandment.

With disbandment agreed upon, Don Hostettler, president of the C. of C., E. P. Helbert and Tom Budd will make final settlement of all business and office equipment and any funds left in the treasury will be turned over to the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The Jaycees will in turn try to carry on as far as possible the activities of the senior organization.

RITES PLANNED

Funeral Services For Alonzo Rice Set Tuesday.

SHELBY—Funeral services for Alonze R. Rice, 85, who died Saturday at Shelby Memorial hospital after an illness of the past six months, will be held at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday from the Sutter funeral home with Rev. J. C. Searle, pastor of United Brethren church, officiating. Burial will be made in the Bucyrus cemetery.

Born in Richland county on Nov. 13, 1856, Mr. Rice lived most of his life in that county and Huron county. He was janitor of Central school here for a number of years.

In addition to his daughter, Mrs. Joe Steele of Shelby, with whom he had been making his home for the past 14 years, Mr. Rice is survived by four grandchildren.

WED RECENTLY

ASHLAND — Announcement was made here of the marriage of Miss Marjorie Kathryn Richards, Ashland teacher, to Robert H. Thomas of Cleveland, at a recent party at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Richards, West Third street. The wedding took place Nov. 21, 1941, at the Salem Methodist Episcopal church at Newport, Ky., with Rev. John R. Creamer performing the ceremony.

Mrs. Thomas, a graduate of Ashland high school and Ashland college, has taught the second grade at Lincoln school for the past four years. She is a member of the Delta Kappa Gamma society and the Ashland Junior Federation. Mr. Thomas, the son of Mrs. Jennie Thomas of Gadsden, Ala., is employed in Cleveland. The couple are residing there.

Cartoon Musical.

A grasshopper hero and a honey bee heroine furnish fun and excitment in the gay musical full-length cartoon, "Mr. Bug Goes to Town," showing at the Madison. Filmed in Technicolor the cartoon deals with the great romance of this unusual pair and their efforts to foil the villainous C. Badgley Beetle who would marry the heroine. The story has its setting on one of the few grassy plots found near Broadway and this insect habitat is constantly endangered by building prospectors. Cary Grant and Joan Fontaine are co-starred in the second picture, "Suspicion," the story of a ne'er-do-well and a country heiress.

Robinson Starred.

Picturesque Role.

Joan Blondell as the proprietress of a Mississippi gambling boat makes a bid for social position in "Lady for a Night," the current Park attraction. When she is chosen carnival queen over the protests of Memphis society she strikes a bargain with a scion of wealth that will make society accept her. Blanche Yurka of the New York stage and a cast that includes John Wayne and Ray Middleton supports Miss Blondell Maxie Rosenbloom in "Harvard Here I Come," is the co-feature.

CANTON WINS DEBATE TOURNEY

SHELBY — Canton McKinley high school won first place in the "A" division of the debate tournament held Saturday at Shelby high school.

Wadsworth won second place in the division, and Fremont and Shelby tied for third position.

The "B" division honors were split by Wooster and Canton. Shelby and Fremont tied for third place.

VISITS PARENTS

GALION—Mrs. James Walters left Sunday to spend several days with her parents at McArthur, Ohio, before going to Augusta, Georgia, to join her husband who is stationed in the United States army medical corps.

Mrs. Walters recently resigned her position as nurse at City hospital. Her husband, before his enlistment a few weeks ago, was a teacher in the Galion high school.

PLAN MEETING

GALION—Arrangements for the annual meeting of the United Commercial Travelers, an event of March 27, was planned at a meeting Saturday night at the Galion Elks' club.

The annual meeting will be at Hotel Talbott, and election of officers will be held. C. L. Morkel is now serving as president. F. E. Cook is secretary.

Carl M. Baehr will be interlocutor. End men will include Jack Connelly, James L. Walker, Cliff Fordem, Andy Anker, Charles B. Monroe, Clarence Decker, Marvin Christman and Jimmy Nichols.

Franklin Craun is directing the songs. The program committee is headed by Earl Logan.

The minstrels will be presented as the feature of a "Men's Night" program, given annually by the association.

Galion model plane builders will participate in the United States Navy program of building 500,000 model planes, it was announced here Saturday.

Plans and specifications for cooperation in the program were received from the U. S. Office of Education by Supt. M. A. Povenmire of the Galion schools who turned them over to Stuart Davies, head of the Galion Model Plane builders.

Quota for Galion is 500 model airplanes to be made on an exact scale of 1 to 72, of the 50 different types of fighting aircraft. These planes are needed for purposes of aircraft recognition. The models will serve also to train civilian "spotters" in identifying enemy planes.

MASONS OBSERVE MASTER'S NIGHT

NEW LONDON—Floral lodge No. 260, F. & A. M., will observe "Past Master's night" here Tuesday evening.

A feature of the evening will be the conferring of the third degree, with past masters filling the various lodge stations.

In addition to the past masters who live in this territory, invitations have been sent to those now living in Lima and Akron, and Anderson, Ind.

CHANGE HOURS

ASHLAND—The Ashland Public library beginning Saturday will be open from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m., rather than opening at noon, which has previously been the custom on Saturday.

On Saturdays during March there will be story hours at 10 a. m. for the first three grades and at 11 a. m. for grades four, five and six. Miss Doris Stout, instructor of juvenile literature at Ashland college, will be in charge.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB PRESENTS PROGRAM

Business and Professional Women's Glee Club, Under Direction of Miss Myrtle Booth, Gives Program Sunday in First Presbyterian Church.

AN AUDIENCE of several hundred persons heard the delightful afternoon musical presented in First Presbyterian church Sunday by the Business and Professional Women's Glee club.

The seventh annual affair of its kind the program was followed by a tea in the social rooms of the church in which the guests were invited to participate.

Miss Myrtle Booth, director of the Glee club, conducted the group of 25 women singers through a program that had been chosen for its melodic appeal. Many pleasing effects were obtained particularly in Custance's whimsical "Nursery Rhyme Suite," and the "Prayer" from "Haensel and Gretel," Humperdinck-Reigger.

Miss Mabel Zehner, organist at First Presbyterian church, was presented as guest artist by the club, and she presented two groups of numbers after introducing the program with the national anthem.

In her first group Miss Zehner played "Concert Variations," Bonnet: "A Song of India," Rimsky-Korsakoff, and "The Rippling Brook," Gillette.

She further charmed her audience with "Clair De Lune," Debussy; "Humoresque," Yon, and "Toccata," Mulet, and played as an encore to her second group, an interesting descriptive bit called "The Squirrel."

The club opened its program with its adopted theme song, "Londonderry Air," and presented in its first group, Stephen Foster's "Beautiful Dreamer," "Now is the Month of Maying," Thomas Morley; "Over the Rainbow," Harburg-Arlen, and the "Hursery Rhyme Suite."

Arrangements in the second group included "The Kerry Dance," James L. Molloy; "I Heard a Forest Praying," Peter De Rose," and "The Lost Chord," Sullivan-Bartlett In the last number both organ and piano accompaniment was used and Miss Estella Arras offered the soprano obligato.

Mrs. Minnie Marks Cahall, the club accompanist, was at the piano for the program and Miss Zehner presided at the organ for the final number. As an encore to the first group the club sang the popular "Giannima Mai," Friml-Riegger.

At the close of the program Miss Mary Elizabeth Gruber, president of the Business and Professional Women's club, expressed appreciation, in behalf of the club, for the interest shown in the Glee club.

Following the program tea was served in the church parlors by members of the First Circle of the First Presbyterian church. Miss Adeline Underwood, Miss Flora Lentzy, Miss Ada Steward and Mrs. Maud Vail presided at the table which was attractively decorated with pink and white appointments and lighted tapers and centered with an arrangement of spring flowers in pastel colors.

Members of the glee club are the Misses Estella K. Arras, Lucille Beattie, Virginia Dye, Marjorie High, Eileen Stout, Sara Marie Weil and Margaret Yarian and Mrs. Eleanor S Smith, sopranos; the Misses Edna Dean, Margaret Hopper, Marie Kalbfleisch, Althea Lorentz, Doris Mann, Nina Pollock and Thelma Reed second sopranos; and the Misses Lilian F. David, Dorothy Garver, Mary Elizabeth Gruber, Mabelle A Koppes, Dorothy L. Landers, Minnie M. Laudon, Clara H Miller and Mrs. Ruth Ewing and Mrs. Frances Schultz, altos.

Ushering the guests to their places at the program were Miss Mary Kolb, Mrs Blanche Eckels, Miss Martha McFarland, Miss Thelma Bogan, Mrs Mildred Perry, Mrs. Margaret Casperson, Miss Ruth Maffet and Mrs. Irma Augustine. Club members will hold their 18th birthday anniversary meeting and guest party on March 11 at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Miss Marie Weil, program chairman, will be assisted by Miss Martha McFarland, Mrs Christine Fernyak, Mrs. Eleanor Smith, Mrs. Carrie Willet and Miss Lois MacKellar. Members of the hospitality committee for the affair are Miss Bertha Reinewald, chairman, Miss Emma Reinewald, Miss Martha Parker, Miss Teresa Peiffer and Mrs. Ruth Wiseman.

Band Members Honored By Mothers' Club

Members of the Senior high school band were guests of honor when the Senior High Band Mothers' club gave a banquet in the school cafeteria at 6 p. m. Friday. Guests were Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, Rev. C. A. Portz, Mr. and Mrs. J. Merton Holcombe and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Rohleder.

Speaker for the evening was Rev. Swoyer. Talks also were given by Rev. Portz, Mr. Rohleder and Mr. Holcombe. Todd Strohmeyer, captain of the band, gave a short talk and special recognition to the band sergeants.

Table decorations for the banquet were in patriotic colors, featuring red and white carnations and blue tapers.

Accessory Hats Keep Girls Lovely

Left, red and white striped taffeta hat and gloves; right, black horsehair calot with feathers and veil; below, cap of white filigree lace straw.

By SUSAN BARDEN
(International Illustrated News Writer)

Those of you who have followed the debutantes and the college girls in their decided preference for going completely bareheaded, will probably be interested in a collection of an entirely new type of headgear

This new style requires no fitting and is meant to stimulate the interest of women who, until now have gone hatless. They are actually accessory hats that can keep a girl looking beautiful throughout the day . . . through committee meetings, lunch, business, shopping, cocktails and dinner

Lange, the well-known dress designer, felt that at this time women should look more glamorous, more romantic, more exciting than they have ever looked before, if only to show our fighting men that American women are worth fighting for. For this reason there is not a single military note in the entire showing.

Bits of Sheer Nothing.

Many of these hats are really bits and pieces of sheer nothing, arranged to show off coiffures and to call attention to a beautiful face They are vivid and lighthearted, with a real feel of spring, and are alluringly feminine enough to win the most hardboiled military man.

The bit of fluff that is reminiscent of an old-fashioned little cap is made of white filigree lace straw. It is draped on combs and supported by gold filigree Chinese pins.

Miss June Clyde, musical comedy star, models another hat which is made of red and white striped taffeta. The back is a pointed skull cap, and the entire hat is mounted on a comb. With this she wears gloves with long wide cuffs made of the same striped material.

The third hat has a definitely siren air and is especially designed to be worn with late afternoon and dinner dresses. It will make you look more dressed up for your cocktail engagements, and will tone down a dinner dress to a less formal note in case your beau is not dressing The hat is a calot of black horsehair with a spray of smooth feathers, and fine mesh veiling that gives height to a pert back and falls alluringly down the sides and under the chin.

Low Cost Dressing Table

(Wide World Features)

A dressing table does wonders for a room—and it's no great task for any girl to design and decorate, says designer Jo Kim. Here's his recipe:

Take two unpainted chests each having three drawers. Add a big old mirror, one small glass shelf about 8 by 24 inches and some leatherette or chintz, about three yards to cover six drawers. Paint the chests. Fasten the mirror between the two, or let it hang like a picture between them. Put the glass shelf on rods attached to the sides of the chest.

Mr. Kim planned the arrangement shown here. He painted the chests piano black and covered the drawers with white leatherette outlined with nail heads, but you may have a dressmaker trim instead. The leatherette also covers the headboard of the bed in the room, matches a poodle carpet and contrasts well with a salmon satin bedspread and stool cover.

Your Eyes Should Be Glamorous

By MME. QUI VIVE

It is a strenuous age in which we live. There's tension in the air. Old leisurely ways have gone. Every woman is busy, or thinks she is, which is the same thing almost. We're continually adding little jobs to the big regular ones. And, perhaps you've noticed, there's many a pair of pretty eyes that look tired. Or they're bored looking, haven't a single twinkle in them. That's bad. Tense, drawn faces are no help to a sad, worn world.

The beauty of the human lanterns is not so much a matter of color and contour as it is of expression. The intriguing expression is the result of animation. Mental animation is born of zippy spirits and a brain that is trained to chuck out depressing thoughts and to establish in their place such mental images as may be exhilerating and inspiring. Dismal Dora doesn't get very far on the beauty road. Laughing Laura has the boys at her heels. Dora finds that it is almost impossible to live with herself. Laura gets along very well in her own company.

The formula of beauty should include a little ginger. That does not mean that a girl, in order to have her countenance alight, must have hair, arms and heels flying, but it does mean that she must possess within her soul an enthusiasm for life. Then she has glamorous eyes.

What's to be done for tired eyes, besides bolstering up the spirits?

Readers have been told often enough by this preacher of pulchritude that eyes are benefitted by periods of rest-ceasing close work, standing at a window, adjusting the vision to far distances. Women who sew and those who plunk the old typewriter every day should do that. When the eyes are blinky after a long period of reading in the evening, bathe them first with hot water, then with cold, to stir up blood streams that have gone sluggish. Puts pep in the peepers.

When subjected to dust, apply a boric acid solution. Your druggist will prepare it for you. Ordinarily the eyes need little attention of that kind. They have their own oiling and washing systems, get along pretty well. But foreign particles can set up an infection, must be washed away.

Inflammation of any kind is alarming. If it persists, canter to a medical man who specializes in eye treatments. Sties are troublesome, often deplete the growth of the lashes. At the first sign of redness apply hot moist applications to bring the small boil to a head. In time, it will break, the pus will be exuded. It is not safe to lance these disturbing blemishes; only a doctor should do that.

If vision is impaired don't let vanity stand in the way of putting on specs. Eyestrain may produce headaches, often results in turkey tracks or has a depressing effect on the nervous system.

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T GIVE BARGAINS

When you enable the declarer to take a trick with a small card which would have been worthless to him except for your action, you are giving him a bargain. That is what happens frequently when a players lead a fourth-best card against a No Trump contract when he could have led some honor-in-sequence from a three-honor combination in the same suit. When the honor lead is made, the declarer can't possibly take the trick with a small card, but must use up an honor of his own.

What a terrific difference the correct lead would have made on this hand, as against the wrong one which was tried. West opened the fourth-best diamond, the 7, and South won it with the 9. The spade 3 was led, East letting the Q win and also ducking the 10, which South overtook with the J. He came in with the A on the spade K and then fired back the diamond 8. With the K-Q to stop the suit, the declarer took all told two tricks in diamonds, four in spades, one in clubs and two in hearts by winning the heart finesse West had made game easy for him, not only by presenting a trick to him with the spade 9, but by thus enabling him to retain positive control of the suit.

Notice the result, if West had made his correct lead of the diamond J. To win that, South would have had to use one of his honors. Then, when he led spades, he would have had to hope that West had the A. When East bobbed up with it instead, he would have sent the diamond 8 through the declarer's last honor, and West would have captured it with his tenace. That would have given the defenders four tricks in the suit, plus the setter in spades.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

That Bob's response to my father's query was satisfactory, I knew by the chief's quick, approving comment.

"That's fine," he said. "Ronald will send you a letter special delivery, reach you tomorrow, shedding light on all dark places. Do not hesitate to write or telephone me reverse if you are in doubt about any point. And now goodbye—and good luck!"

He hung up the receiver and turned to me. In the tension attending the unknown mission upon which my father was sending me, I had risen and was standing uneasily near my packed bags.

"Sit down here, please," he said. He drew out a big, comfortable arm chair and put me into it, then sat down opposite me.

Madge Relaxes.

"Please relax," he said, smiling. "You are as taut as the proverbial fiddle string. There!"—as I felt my tightened nerve ends loosen under his soothing words and he saw the effect in my telltale face—"that is better."

I was a bit ashamed of myself, and I tried to show it in my answer.

"I'm sorry to be so foolish, Father," I said, "but I promise—"

"But me no buts," quoted my father, smiling. "In the first place you aren't foolish, and in the second I don't need your promise. I know that you will measure up to any emergency. You always have and you always will."

Ready for Any Task.

The accolade was at once a soothing ointment and a spur. I felt my spirits lifting "by the second," as Mary would say, and I spoke with decision.

"I am ready now, for whatever you wish me to do, to go wherever you wish me to go."

"Presently, presently," he said with a peremptory wave of his hand. "I have a few things to check with you first."

I asked no questions; simply sat silent until he should be ready to speak.

"In the first place," he said, "how strong do you think their suspicion of the identity of the tan letter author is in the minds of Olina and her mother?"

"I think it is a certainty," I replied promptly, and told him of what I heard Olina say to her mother when I came to the door inadvertently left ajar.

More Important.

"I thought as much," he rejoined. He sat silent again for several seconds, then shrugged his shoulders with a gesture which I knew meant that he was tabling the whole matter until he should be compelled to consider it again.

"But that can await further developments," he said at last. "We cannot move at all until we find out what the personal is which this unknown says he is going to send to Olina. So now we are free to turn our attention to something more important.

Several seconds passed before he spoke again. While I sat tensely, strongly suspecting what his next subject of conversation would be.

Drawn by Bickett.

"Have you that paper of queer characters, which you think were drawn by Jack Bickett's hand?"

"I know they were," I said with decision, "and I have it here in my purse."

"You must have anticipated the mission I wished of you," he said, and I flushed as I answered him, now sure of my ground.

"Yes, I did," I said. "Would you like to look at the paper?"

"It's not necessary," he said. "The essential thing is to have this professor look at it. That's what I wish you to do this afternoon—find that man and learn from him what he knows."

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, March 3.

Much of this day's progress depends upon the exercise of prudence, thrift, amiability, good judgment and sound management, according to the mutual and lunar aspects. Under an expansive and magnanimous tendency there may be a disposition to attempt over-ambitious propositions, with extravagance, unjustified outlay of funds, and other excesses and indulgences which may antagonize those influential persons whose support is essential to success.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is, although confronted by a year of good opportunity for attaining ambitious objectives, the carrying out of major projects, with a sound stabilization of the fortunes and security for the future, yet may be carried away by enthusiasm or optimism, extravagance, or unjustifiable outlay of funds.

A child born on this day although having a capable and ambitious place in life yet may undermine its success by extravagance.

Hash as a Gourmet's Delight

By BETSY NEWMAN

Hash may be one of those things to be endured because we mustn't waste food, or it can be a gourmet's delight. There are cooks who have a way with hash, so it becomes the latter dish; but all of us can improve our technique so that our hash is regarded with appreciation.

Today's Menu.

Beef Hash
Chili Sauce or Catsup
Glazed Carrots
Mixed Green Salad
Pickled Beets or Spiced Apples
Economical Plum Pudding
Coffee or Tea

* * *

Beef Hash

Leftover cooked meat
Boiled potatoes 1 tsp. onion
Gravy or Milk Salt, Pepper

Chop meat fine, add potatoees and chop, add finely chopped onion and blend well with meat and potatoes. Use equal amount of meat and potatoes. Season with salt and pepper and moisten with left-over gravy, or, if there is none, with milk. Melt a small amount of bacon fat or butter in heavy frying pan, and when hot spread hash evenly over pan. Cover and cook over very low heat until heated through and a brown crust has formed on tre bottom. Slip a spatula or pancake turner under one-half hash, and fold it over the other. Turn out on heated platter and serve with catsup of chili sauce.

Glazed Carrots.

Carrots 2 Tbsps. butter
2 Tbsps. sugar ½ cup water

Scrub carrots, cut off root and stems and boil slowly in boiling salted water until almost tender, 10 or 12 minutes. Drain and scrape off skins. Melt butter in small frying pan, add sugar and water and let sugar dissolve. Put in carrots and cook until they are nicely glazed.

Remember Without Wanting + + +

CHAPTER XV

In the apartment she turned on the lamp over the divan and ripped open the envelope with gloved hands.

"Dearest:

"I should like to spare you this hurt but there is no way out and so little time.

"I am not returning to New York, Judith. I have been instructed to proceed directly to Venezuela to a job which will be long and tedious. I told you, my darling, that we could not fight distance and that I never promised not to leave you. I would change my work if I could but it is too late now. I am as desolate as you, believe me, and I shall have left Florida when you receive this because the sound of your voice over the telephone would make it all the more difficult. The only thing that cheers me is that you are coming down in March during the vacation that is due you. I love you.

Max."

Incredulously Judith read it again, but the words were still the same. January . . . February . . . March . . . Five weeks to the first of March. She would go! A one-way ticket to the address at the top of the page, yes, a one-way ticket because she would not be coming back.

Standing very still in the quiet room, she drove back anger that he had not telephoned her, that he had denied her a decent goodbye. But she could not drive back the tears. Anger fought with excuses for him. Couldn't help this. He had orders. It was his work. She understood that he had tried to spare her. She understood. She must and she would go to him in March. She would go to stay. But disappointment and hurt were in her eyes while she stood there, her thoughts leaping ahead, plans forming in her mind, plans forming fast because she would not admit how bereft she felt and how desperately lonely. No ugly thoughts, no lack of faith, no loss of confidence would she permit in her mind.

Presently she straightened, reached for her handkerchief, thinking, "It won't be long. Five weeks . . . Oh, it'll be fun meeting him there . . . I won't be unhappy about this. We'll be married there."

She took off her things and went toward the kitchen. But all desire for food had left her. Later she felt a little ill when she sat down. Then she got up, entered the bedroom and wrote to Max, wrote with light-heartedness and gayety about coming to him . . . but it was the sort of light-heartedness and gayety you feign when you are afraid.

The next day she went to Giles Benson's office and asked about her vacation. He was vague until he realized how determined and anxious she was and then promptly told her that the first three weeks in March would be fine with him. The third week she was taking at her own expense.

"Planning something special?" he asked.

"I'm going to South America." She would not tell him that she was going to be married.

At noon she hurried to a travel agent who told her about ships and rates. Thereupon she made a deposit on a reservation and walked back to the store, pausing occasionally to look into shop windows. There was time enough for clothes. There was time, too, to tell her family that she was going. Should she tell them she was going to Venezuela to be married to a man they had not met? She did not know how she would manage her family.

Max's short, loving notes still came and the clerk always smiled when he gave them to her. Max was delighted that she was coming. He wrote, "I'll see to it that I'm free the entire time you're here. It's lovely here and the climate is perfect. We'll be very happy again, darling."

She went shopping in her free moments, and her closet was soon filled with bright, light clothes and several vivid felt hats. On the day she bought her wedding outfit, an all-blue ensemble, she came home to find a letter from Emily.

In part Emily wrote, "I have half a dozen nurses and I'm waited on hand and foot. Everybody is so good to me. My old school friends drop in to see me. The boys, too. I've been to church and played bridge, and maybe after a while I won't remember I ever went away. I'm feeling almost well. Tim wrote me from Palm Beach. I don't answer his letters and soon he'll stop writing. I hope. He writes the way he is in person, but I couldn't be honest if I wrote to him. I'd have to say how much I love him still.

"How long does it take, I wonder, to get over it? Every morning I wake up hoping that, as if I had a disease, I'll be cured. I suppose Max is back and you're happy again. I saw him only that one time, you know, and I knew he was terribly in love with you. Have you seen Phyllis and Ames? Have you found someone to live with you?"

The agony of waiting for something that was never going to happen you could read between the lines of Emily's letter.

To answer Emily's question she called Phyllis and told her that she was coming one evening that week. Not for dinner, she hastily explained, knowing that Phyllis' cooking had not improved and that she found it task enough to cook for Ames and herself.

When she pressed her finger to Phyllis' apartment bell and Phyllis opened the door, she was only slightly shocked at the scene that greeted her. Emily had prepared her weeks ago. For the odor of cigarets long extinguished filled the living-room where magazines were carelessly strewn about and where the accumulation of several days' dust lay over the new furniture and polished floor. The doors to the bedroom and kitchen were open and she saw that the twin beds were still unmade and that the sink was filled with soiled dishes. But Phyllis looked lovely in a green velvet housecoat, her red hair perfect, her face made up.

"Come in, Judith! This place is a sight, but Ames goes to a meeting every Wednesday night and doesn't come home to dinner." She smiled. "I've been lazy all day. New magazines came and it was too cold to go out. Let me show you some new clothes I've just got."

Frequently, Judith suspected, Ames came home to an unmade bed and to dust and dirty dishes. Poor meticulous Ames who had met a charming red-head at a party and fallen in love with her and married her . . . Why didn't Phyllis try to please him as she had tried to please her advertising manager? Was marriage something to be taken advantage of because it was supposed to be a life contract, a job from which you couldn't be fired?

Judith had not told Phyllis about Max and she was sure that Emily had not. She said simply, "I'm going to South America on my vacation next month."

"Oh, Judith, how marvelous, darling! I'm taking Ames into taking me abroad, but he says he can't afford it. I'd like to get over before something happens over there. Ames thinks it will this year. But he wants a house and his father wants us to have a house. I don't want a house in the country. I had enough of country when I was a kid."

"Ames' father is probably thinking about grandchildren, Phyllis . . .

Phyllis looked indignant. "He can think something else! I'm not ready to have a child yet! I had a miserable childhood, and until I married I had to work to support myself, putting up with cranky bosses and going out in bad weather. I deserve some leisure and fun. I don't want to be tied down to a child yet. I don't know anything about babies."

Later she said. "I mustn't forget to tell you we're having a party in two weeks. I haven't set a definite date yet. I want you to come. Bring Sid Biddison along or anybody or nobody—as you chose. It doesn't matter. There won't be many. I wouldn't know what to do with a lot of people. Some people we met on our honeymoon are going to be in town and I thought it would be amusing to see them again. Now tell me about Emily. I've been intending to write, but I've been so busy."

* * *

Ames came in then and Judith saw anger and embarrassment in his eyes as they swept over the untidy apartment which was to have been the first real home he had had since his mother died and he and his father had lived in a hotel. How careful he had been in selecting the furniture and rugs and china before he and Phyllis had been married! Now the furniture was covered with dust, the rugs with ashes and the china had not been washed since yesterday.

He seemed genuinely glad to see Judith. "Why, Judith! I thought you'd forgotten us."

"On the contrary, I thought you'd forgotten me."

"Seems like old times to see you and Phyllis together. Any news?" He bent down and gave Phyllis a husbandly kiss.

"I was just telling Judith we were planning a party and I was asking about Emily when you came in."

"How is Emily, Judith?"

"She's coming along beautifully and she has a devoted family to help her."

"Good. I saw her ex-boy friend tonight."

"Tim?"

Ames smiled rather cynically. "Yes. Dad and I stopped in at a bar for a drink after a meeting and Tim was there with another chap and two girls. They were all pretty high. I don't know whether they were coming from a party or going to one."

"What sort of girls?" Phyllis asked.

"You call them glamor girls or cafe society. Tim didn't recognize me. He was too busy with the blonde. I hope Emily—"

"Emily has gone home to stay," Judith said.

In the taxi going home her thoughts darted from Phyllis and Ames to Tim, and then to Max, lingering on the latter because certainly it was pleasanter to contemplate their joyous reunion than to think of Phyllis' carelessness, Ames' embarrassment and Tim's actions.

"I've got to live here with the people in my community, and I've got to explain to them just what goes on. You're going back home to Lucasville, down by Portsmouth, and you don't have to explain anything. But I'd like to have you admit like a man that you were wrong, or show me in black and white where I was wrong, and if I was wrong, I'll admit it like a man.

That was Coach Orville Kibler of Ontario talking, and the guy he was addressing was county tournament Referee Dean Schuler of Lucasville. And the subject they were discussing was Schuler's action in giving Coach Charles Steidle, of Shiloh, permission to go out on the floor between the first and second overtime periods of the Ontario-Shiloh game to give coaching instructions to his players.

"I had a right to give him that permission," Schuler declared, and I gave it with the intention of giving you the same permission, and I did give you that permission."

"Yes," agreed Kibler, "you gave it to me too late to do any good But you had no right to give it to either of us The rules don't give you that right. Show me where they do, and I'll admit it."

That was a plain invitation for Referee Schuler to get out the rule book. But he didn't do it. Instead: "I could talk to you for two weeks," says he, "and I couldn't make you believe I was right and you were wrong."

* * *

Truer words were never spoken. For here is the rule that Schuler didn't want to look at.

Rule 15. Section 7—A coach shall not address remarks to players in the game.

Section 8—A coach shall not address remarks to an official during the progress of the game, nor shall he go on the court, except with the approval of an official, TO ATTEND AN INJURED PLAYER.

(Note — Sections 7 and 8 apply to TIME-OUT, PERIODS and TWO MINUTE INTERMISSIONS, as well as to when the ball is in play. Anyone on the players' bench, or officially connected with the team, shall be considered a coach under Sections 7 and 8.

* * *

That's the rule, and it's in plain English, and clear as day, and there's nothing in the rules to give the referee the right to abrogate that rule, with or without the agreement of the rival coaches

It's clear also why Schuler didn't want to get the rule book out to give grounds for his action in breaking this rule.

"We lost the game as it was played" Kibler declares. "and I'm not kicking about that. A protest can't be allowed in a tournament anyway, because the tournament goes on, and can't very well go back to pick up a protested game. But if we had been given the technical foul that was coming to us, we at least would have gained possession of the ball in that second overtime, and that's something we didn't get before Gene Russell fired that long shot that decided the sudden-death victory for Shiloh.

* * *

"I guess," Kibler agreed, "that the only way to deal with an incompetent official is to refuse to hire him again. I've already told the people in Ontario I would never let my boys play again in a game or tournament which Schuler works."

Hassinger, Lantz Tie In Rifle Shoot

In a shoot conducted by the Mansfield Muzzleloader Rifle club Saturday, C Hassinger and S. Lantz tied for first place each with two firsts and one second place.

DiMaggio, the American league's most valuable player last season, officially becomes a holdout today when the outfielders and infielders are expected to report.

Ohio Cage Year Ends This Week

Mt. Union Holds Claim To League, State Titles.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio's collegiate basketeers drop the curtain on their 1941-42 drama this week with an abbreviated schedule of 10 contests having no bearing on the championship races.

Twenty-six of the 38 squads have closed their campaigns, leaving the state ad Ohio conference standings in the tightest title muddle in years. In the state-wide chase the Purple Raiders of Mount Union, beaten only by Muskingum in 18 starts, are atop the heap, followed by Capital's surprising Lutherans who annexed 14 of 15 games.

In the conference the Mount Unions copped 13 of 14 to lead the way, should Toledo's record of three wins in as many starts be erased from consideration. Right on the heels of the Purple Raiders, with 12 conquests in 13 games is Capital, followed by Wooster and Baldwin Wallace which have won 10 of 11.

* * *

Wooster has one game to go, being called upon to trounce Muskingum or drop out of the title-claiming contingent. Mount Union wound up last year with the best record in each division, and is conceded the No. 1 claim to the honors again on the basis of the old sports adage that "you have to beat the champ to take the title."

* * *

However, the Mounts' statewide claim will get plenty of argument from Toledo, winner of 21 of 23 games against the country's best teams, and Wooster, Capital, Akron and other top-flight contenders.

* * *

The week's games:

Monday: Findlay at Bowling Green, De Sales at St Marys, St. Joseph at John Carroll.

Tuesday. Muskingum at Wooster.

Wednesday: Akron at John Carroll, Toledo at Long Island.

Friday: Western Reserve at Case, Toledo at LaSalle.

Saturday: Ohio State at Indiana, John Carroll at Marietta.

NCAA May Bid Illini

Big 10 Title Clinched By Northwestern Win.

By THOMAS DEVINE

CHICAGO—(UP)—A bid to compete in the forthcoming National Collegiate Athletic association's fourth annual tournament appeared likely today for Illinois' newly crowned Big Ten basketball champions

Although Illinois still must meet Iowa tonight at Iowa City and then oppose Purdue in its season's conference finale, the outfit from Champaign clinched the Western conference title by beating Northwestern Saturday night 63 to 49 before a record midwest cage crowd of 18,931 fans The triumph was Illinois' 12th in 13 league games and enabled it to hold a full three-game lead over Iowa and Indiana, now in a tie for second place.

* * *

Illinois proved its championship class by the manner in which it humbled Northwestern to clinch the title. The Illini hopped into a 12 to 2 lead in the first seven minutes of play and were never seriously threatened.

* * *

Ken Menke and Jack Smiley, the smooth-working sophomore forwards, paced the Illinois attack by gainering 19 and 13 points respectively.

While tonight's game with Iowa means little to Illinois, it is of considerable importance to the Hawks. Iowa remained in a tie for second place S turday by beating Purdue 42 to 36 as Rudy Soderquist set the pace with 23 points.

* * *

Three other league games are scheduled tonight. Indiana entertains Northwestern at Bloomington, Purdue goes to Ann Arbor to face Michigan and Wisconsin engages Minnesota at Minneapolis.

* * *

Beside Illinois' title clinching victory Saturday's program also was highlighted by Johnny Kotz scoring 20 points as Wisconsin trimmed Ohio State 44 to 39 to boost his season's total to 193 points, a new conference record, and the 31st consecutive Big Ten defeat for Chicago, which bowed to Michigan 49 to 36. In the other encounter Indiana bested Minnesota 54 to 45.

The standings:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Illinois	12	1	.922
Iowa	9	4	.692
Indiana	9	4	.692
Wisconsin	8	5	.615
Minnesota	8	5	.615
Purdue	8	5	.615
Michigan	5	9	.357
Northwestern	4	9	.307
Ohio State	4	10	.285
Chicago	0	15	.000

EZZARD CHARLES FIGHTS KEN OVERLIN TONIGHT

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Ezzard Charles has a two-fold opportunity tonight in a 10-round light-heavyweight go with Ken Overlin, onetime middleweight champion:

1. To impress the managers of light-heavyweight champion Gus Lesnevich and middleweight titlist Tony Zale who, Promoter Benny Becker said, will watch the scrap; and

2. To avenge the only setback in the Cincinnati high school lad's 26 professional battles—loss of a decision to Overlin here last June.

Crowns Have 2434 To Beat

Orange Street Girls Roll 2295 In Ohio Tourney.

Mansfield Royal Crowns have a 2434 total to beat next week-end at Lima to top the present high score in class "A" of the Ohio women's bowling tournament, rolled by Columbus Colso.

Orange Street Cafe girls yesterday turned in a 2295 total in class "A" quite a distance away from the charmed circle. Peg Yingling paced Orange Street in the team event with a 493 total

Mansfield Moose women, leaders a week ago in class "D" dropped to second place when the Springfield Subscriptions turned in a 1996 total. The Mansfield team has 1919.

* * *

Arlene Peters and Peg Yingling rolled the best doubles score of the Orange Street team yesterday with 905, and Arlene had best singles score of 528

Three divisions of the state women's bowling tournament had new pacesteers after the third week-end of competition.

Bernice Smith of Toledo assumed the class B single leadership with a score of 594.

The Arvay Potato Chips team of Lorain rolled a score of 2,351 to capture the leadership of the class B team division and the subscriptions of Springfield went into first place in the class B team division by totaling 1,996.

The Lorain outfit displaced the Canton Hoovers who had led since the opening week-end with a score of 2,332.

Three other teams edged their way into the class B standings behind the Hoovers. The F. O. Jones of Springfield took third with 2,323, the Goodyear All-Weathers of Akron, fourth, 2,307, and the Dr. Peppers of Springfield, fifth, 2,270.

* * *

Weather Seal of Akron went into second place in the class A team standings with a score of 2,498, and the Isaly Dairy of Akron grabbed third with 2,482.

* * *

Ruth Tryo of Dayton continued to pace the singles and all-events classes and Grace Hatch and Evelyn Ricard of Cleveland, the doubles.

Jake Miller's of Mansfield rolled 1725 in class "D" over the week-end.

FOUL PLAY

Since no one on his club pulled this one, Nick Etten of the Phils feels safe in reporting what he thinks was last season's prize boner or best hissing—he doesn't know which. Max West of the Braves had just grounded out and advanced a runner to third base. The first baseman threw the ball home and the catcher let it get away just far enough so that the runner made a break.

* * *

West, heading for the bench, absently picked up the ball and tossed it to the catcher, who made a putout. While everybody, including Casey Stengel, still was speechless, Paul Waner administered a perfect rebuke by fouling one off so the ball caught Max on the back of the neck.

Warren May Enter Mid-Atlantic Loop

YOUNGSTOWN — (AP) — The Mid-Atlantic Baseball league had prospects today of continuing as an eight-club circuit with Akron replaced by Warren, now in the Penn State league.

* * *

Elmer Daily, Mid-Atlantic president, indicated that business men associated with the Warren club would reach a decision before next Sunday's meeting of his league in Springfield.

* * *

If no successor to Akron is found, the circuit will have to operate with six clubs, Daily said Akron was forced to drop out when the New York Yankees withdrew their support.

Teams now in the league are Youngstown, Dayton, Springfield, Canton and Zanesville, O.; Charleston, W. Va., and Erie, Pa.

Ask Rationed Tires For School Teams

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Commissioner H. R. Townsend of the Ohio High Athletic association disclosed today that a petition has been forwarded to the OPA and the war department by the National Federation of High School Athletic association to give school buses hauling players to athletic contests eligibility rating for rationed tires.

Returning from the federation's meeting in San Francisco, Townsend said the measure is necessary for high schools to meet the governments request for an expansion of athletic programs during the war. Present regulations prohibit the distribution of rationed tires to school buses for extra-curricular activities.

Gil Dodds, MacMitchell Re-Matched For March 14

By PAUL SCHEFFELS

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Gilbert Dodds, conqueror of Leslie MacMitchell, New York university's "mahout of the mile," may provide the competitive spark necessary to produce a new world record for the distance when the two runners meet in their rematch race March 14.

Dodds, who swung around the board saucer in Madison Square Garden Saturday night with such agility that he handed MacMitchell his first defeat in 20 mile starts, steps from the spotlight temporarily this week as the collegians take over the Garden for their annual IC4A carnival.

* * *

MacMitchell, whose defeat before 14,000 fans in the National indoor championships furnished the indoor season's biggest upset, formally accepted the James E. Sullivan award for being the outstanding amateur athlete of 1941 yesterday but said he was busy already with plans to match strides with Dodds in the Columbian mile.

* * *

Before his defeat, MacMitchell —due to lack of competition in the mile — planned to compete against Dodds and Greg Rice over the two-mile route on the 14th. However, he had no sooner recovered from his loss to Dodds who, incidentally, learned how to run so effectively by correspondence school, than he switched plans and Director Frank Brennan of the New York K. of C. meet concurred whole-heartedly.

* * *

The resulting "grudge" race should not only sell out the Garden but probably will produce a time good enough to eclipse Dodds' Saturday clocking of 4:08.3 and the indoor record of 4:07.4.

Dodds' upset victory, and four indoor world record performances featured one of the greatest indoor meets in history. Standards were established by Greg Rice in the three-mile event, Al Blozis in the shot-put, John Borican in 1000 meters and by the Seton Hall two-mile relay team.

Rice starts next in the Catholic university games at Washington March 9 when he tries to better his own 2½ mile mark but his toughest competition will come in the two-mile race at the K. of C. games. Walter Mehl of Madison, Wis., the last man to beat Rice, has trailed in all the major mile events this season but is moving back to the distance in which he first attained prominence. He romped home ahead of Rice—30 races ago—at Los Angeles in the 1940 Finnish relief fund meet.

Georgetown's Blozis started Saturday's record-breaking when he tossed the 16-pound shot 57 feet ¾ inches—within a quarter-inch of Jack Torrance's eight-year-old outdoor mark—and smashing his own indoor mark by 8¼ inches. Rice's 13:45.7 for the three miles was the best time ever registered by anyone indoors or out.

The Seton Hall relay team negotiated the two miles in 7:39.8, paring 1.8 seconds off the 17-year-old record set by Georgetown. John Borican of Asbury, N. J., traveled the 1,000 yards in 2:10.5 and established a new meet record and then went on to set a new world indoor mark of 2:24.3 for the 1,000 meters.

Denison University Basketeers Score 50-Point Game Average

OHIO JOCKEY KILLED BY HORSE AT HIALEAH

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Trampled by a horse, the body of Richard Clemmons, 29, of Grove City, O., was found in a stall at Hialeah Park race track yesterday. He had ridden at Beulah Park in Columbus, O., and Thistledown at Cleveland during his 12 years as a jockey. Burial will be Wednesday in Grove City.

Cage Playoffs Start Today

Northwestern Sectional Opens at Youngstown.

By JAMES EMERSON

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Five games in the Northeastern Class A sectional meet at Youngstown tonight inaugurate tournament playoffs for the 1942 state high school basketball championships.

The opening night may eliminate one of the state's 16 Class A. defending district champions at the start of month-long tourney play.

* * *

Youngstown Rayen, which gained the finals at Columbus last March, faces Youngstown South, a club which downed Rayen twice during the regular season. The last time was last Friday by a 27 to 25 score.

* * *

Class A meets open at Delaware in the Central district and Defiance in the Northwestern district and Class B at Westerville in the Central district tomorrow night. All of the state's 250 Class A and B tourney contenders except 11 Class A outfits in the Toledo area will engage in initial jousts this week in 27 cities. The Toledo meets opens next week.

* * *

Thirty-two district winners will be decided by Saturday, March 14, for the Class B finals at Springfield the following two week-ends.

County playoffs during the past two weeks narrowed the Class B schools from 900 to 225 and took a toll of at least three district titlists—Glenford, the defending state champion; Midvale and Spring Valley. Among 1942 district rulers surviving county meets were Cridersville, Waterloo township and Hanover township (Butler county). Four other defenders — Hicksville, Loudonville, Marysville and Xenia O.S.S.O.—did not have to compete in the county eliminations.

On the basis of season records and the normal quota of tourney upsets, at least 10 of the 16 Class A. defending champions are likely to go by the boards during the next two weeks. Martins Ferry, winner of the 1942 state crown, has a 20-2 record for the season but meets Tiltonsville (19-1) at Tiltonsville Thursday night. The Tiltons and Ferry split two encounters during the season.

Here are the season marks of the other defending titlists—Ashland 13-4; Bryan 8-9 (X); Canton McKinley 13-3; Cincinnati Hughes 8-6 (X); Lakewood 10-3; Lima Central 8-8; Massillon 10-6; Middletown 13-3; Newark 19-2; Portsmouth 7-12; Springfield 10-9; Toledo Libbey 8-7; Xenia Central 18-1; Youngstown Rayen 10-5; Zanesville 10-8. (X—Denotes one game missing).

The schedule at Youngstown tonight: Youngstown Chaney vs. Struthers; Minerva vs. Youngstown East (14-3); Austintown Fitch vs. Hubbard; South vs. Rayen; Canton Lehman vs. Salem.

Caps, Hershey Tie Puck Race

(By United Press)

The Indianapolis Capitals went into a second-place tie in the American Ice Hockey league western division today after taking a 7-3 verdict from the Philadelphia Rockets.

The win coupled with a 1-6 defeat suffered by the Hershey Bears at the hands of the New Haven Eagles, enabled the Capitals to overtake the Bears, two points behind the Cleveland Barons.

In other games the Pittsburgh Hornets, western division cellar-dwellers, upset the Buffalo Bisons 4-2, while the Washington Lions defeated the Providence Reds, 5-2.

TIFFIN—(AP)—The Ohio State Elks Bowling tournament next year will be held in Warren, it was announced here following week-end balloting.

Bowlers Set for Congress

Vanguard of 30,000 Men Arrives in Ohio Capital.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The vanguard of an invading army of some 30,000 men, with an overnight bag in one hand and a 16-pound bowling ball in the other, descended upon Ohio's capital today for Tuesday's opening of the 42nd American Bowling congress.

The opening shift to try out the 36 glistening alleys has been gathered from Ohio, New York, Kentucky, Michigan, Texas, Illinois, Indiana and Pennsylvania.

The huge field, greatest ever entered in the pin classic, has 5,742 five-man teams, 11,854 doubles combinations, and 23,784 in the race for individual honors. The keglers, financing their own tourney, paid $380,895 in entry fees, and they'll get back approximately a quarter of a million dollars in prizes.

Before the curtain falls May 13 on the 73-day tourney, the bowlers from 36 states and three Canadian provinces will roll a total of 228,606 games. Bowling congress officials figure an average of 19 tosses per game, which means the 16-pound balls will roar down the alleys a total of 4,343,514 times before the championships in four classes are decided.

Top prize in the five-man event is $1,500, for the doubles $600, the singles $300 and the all-events $200. In addition, each winner gets a diamond-studded gold medal valued at $300. Approximately one-third of the entries in each division gets a cut of the prize melon

All equipment used in the 36-alley plant constructed in the state fairgrounds coliseum is new, and each team fires at new pins costing about $15 per set. At the finish all the equipment is sold to private alley owners.

Tuesday's opening shift will take the alleys at 7:30 p. m., after ceremonies in which Gov. John W. Bricker will toss the first ball. At 9:30 p. m. teams of Elks from all parts of Ohio take over, while at 11:30 p m , 36 Columbus "Booster" squads roll their five-man games.

It goes on that way, 16 hours a day, for more than 10 weeks, with team events being rolled each evening, and the doubles and singles in the afternoons. A special prize fund has been set up for "booster" squads which average 850 or less in regular competition—but if any Booster club can "get hot" and get into the regular prize list it gets a two-way cut of the money.

Braves Almost Out Of League

Marion or Sandusky May Get Franchise.

Mansfield Braves are all but out of the Ohio State baseball league today.

Every team in the league but the Braves was represented at the loop's schedule meeting at Findlay yesterday, and while the Braves were not dropped from the circuit, President Joe Donnelly announced that either Marion or Sandusky is ready to take over the Mansfield franchise.

Donnelly said he was still confident the loop would have six clubs for the 1942 season but if a sixth team is not obtained, the league will operate with four.

Tiffin is negotiating a working agreement with the Cleveland Indians; Fremont already has a hookup with the St. Louis Cardinals, and Fostoria with Detroit. Lima will operate independently.

Grover Hartley, owner-manager of the Findlay club, is dickering for sale of his team to Fred Howell, Dayton attorney, who presumably would continue to operate the franchise in Findlay.

Donnelly said most of the cities plan to play twilight games next season. The league's next meeting will be March 22 at Lima when each club must post a $600 deposit.

Has New Plan To Spur Sales Of Defense Stamps

MIAMI, Fla. —(INS)— Taking a tip from the management of the Roney-Plaza hotel in across-the-bay Miami Beach, Postmaster George E. Merrick today was recommending to other postmasters in the country:

Have hotel desk clerks present each guest, upon registration, with a defense stamp album, including a brand new 25-cent defense stamp pasted on the first blank.

It was the brainchild of Hazen J. Titus of the Roney-Plaza. He passed the word along to Postmaster Merrick, who in turn tipped off contemporary postmasters that the plan "would bring in hundreds of thousands of dollars in defense bonds."

NICE RIDE, NO INJURIES

CHILMARK, Mass—(U.P.)—When 94-year-old Freeman Hayden fell down the cellar stairs, his relatives called an ambulance. He protested furiously but finally agreed to go to the hospital when he learned he would be the first person to ride in the new Martha's Vineyard ambulance. He was right all the time —no injuries.

EMPIRE STATE IMPROVES DIET FOR CHILDREN

Fewer Than Six Per Cent of Pupils Said To Suffer From Malnutrition.

(By United Press)

ALBANY, N. Y.—Populous New York state is leaving no stone unturned in its fight to wipe out the scourge of malnutrition among school children.

A recent survey, undertaken by the state nutrition committee, revealed that the effort is bearing fruit, in as much as New York is leading the nation with a relatively low percentage of undernourished children.

The survey, conducted by the state education department's health division, showed that fewer than 6 per cent of all school children in the state are ill-fed. The survey pointed out that this percentage compares with an average of 33 per cent of both adults and children in the rest of the nation who are experiencing the ill-effects of malnutrition.

Dr. Hiram A. Jones, commenting on the survey, said the 6 per cent represents a decrease from former years due to constantly higher dietary standards.

"Nevertheless, we shall not be satisfied until malnutrition is completely eliminated," Dr. Jones asserted.

"The strength of the nation in the future depends upon the strength of these students," Dr. Jones added. "They must be adequately and properly fed if they are to continue as a strong, free people."

The survey covered 553,013 students in grade and high schools outside New York City, Buffalo and Rochester. Of this number, 29,942 were reported by attending physicians to be malnourished in varying degrees.

As might be expected, children attending rural schools had the lowest percentage of improper nourishment. Only one out of every 23 showed evidence of malnutrition. More than 70 per cent of the students in that class were reported to be under treatment.

Students in villages of 4,500 or more population ranked second, with only one out of every 22 falling into the undernourished category. Seventy-five per cent are receiving treatment.

The larger cities showed both the highest degree of undernourishment and the lowest degree of treatment. One out of every 18 was ill-fed and of these 61 per cent are receiving treatment.

Dr. Jones declared that the state will continue to combat the so-called scourge with all its strength through education and improved dietary standards.

ENDANGERS PEACH CROP

WEST PLAINS, Mo—(U.P.)—The severe freezes during January are feared to have ruined the 1942 peach crop in some sections of this fruit growing area. Below zero temperatures are not believed to have hurt other fruit crops and growers hope the peach damage will not extend over the entire area.

Report 10,000 Jews Are With British Forces

KANSAS CITY—(INS)—Fighting in the British ranks against the Axis hordes today are 10,000 Jews, according to Rabbi Barnett Brickner, of Cleveland.

Rabbi Brickner, an executive board member of the American and World Zionist organizations, made that statement in a lecture recently in Kansas City.

"Although it is little known, there are 1,500 Palestine Jews in the Royal Air Force," the rabbi asserted. "Jews are fighting in the Near East, and they fought with honor in Crete and Libya."

Palestine, he revealed, has been a source of supply for the British forces. Cantonments have been built and technicians have devised roads for the expeditionary troops.

Two million casualties have occurred among the Jews of the world in the war so far, he said, adding "and there probably will be two million more before the war is finished."

CODE REVEALS BYRON SECRET

Admirer Says British Poet Had Four Legal Wives and 10 Children.

(By United Press)

DENVER—A secret code devised by an admirer of Lord Byron reveals that the British poet had four legal wives and ten children instead of one spouse and no offspring as usually believed, according to Mrs. Frances M. Scheidacker.

"Byron's family and publishers have hidden the truth," argues Mrs. Scheidacker, a Brooklyn, N. Y., woman who spent 12 years delving into the life of the poet.

"But the truth is revealed by a comparatively simple key, a secret code used throughout his poems, prose and letters," she pointed out in a speech in Denver.

The code was made by using italics in connection with quotations from other authors in Byron's work, she explained. The italicized phrases linked up with the quotations tell a message to which the passage secretly refers, she said.

"The code gives a wealth of information on Byron's friends and intimates," Mrs. Scheidacker said.

"It reveals that he was married when he was 15 to Mary Charworth, when he was 18 to Jane Elmslie, five months later to Annabelle Downey and nine years later to Annabella Millbanks.

"The second Annabella is the only wife biographers credit him with," she explained.

Byron's first wife, she said, was married a second time illegally; his second wife ran away with a soldier; and the third died.

She said that while biographers do not credit him with any offspring the poet had one legitimate child by his first wife. She claims the code indicaes nine others were born illegitimately.

An even temperature of at least 68 degrees should be maintained for the successful growing of plants indoors.

DOFFS TOGS TO DEMONSTRATE MUSCLES USED IN FLYING SHIP

(By United Press)

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — What muscles does a pilot use in flying?

This question arose in the office here of Ernest Smith, director of athletics for the U. S. army air corps in the southeast.

Smith was on the spot. Twenty-eight assistant physical directors, charged with whipping aviation cadets into shape, wanted an answer.

"I don't know," said Smith, watching a formation of planes nose up from a nearby flying field, "but come on—we'll find out."

And so 28 men, scheduled to go out to as many airdromes as trainers for aviation cadets, followed the director. All, like Smith, were experts in their line —many of them college coaches —but conditioning a man to handle a military airplane was something else.

And Major.-Gen. Walter R. Weaver had ordered that all American and British cadets in the southeast be conditioned specifically to meet the strain of flying.

Smith halted on the flying line and said to a cadet:

"Mister, take off most of your clothes and get in that airplane there." When the cadet was in the cockpit, he added: "Now, please go through all the motions of flying."

The cadet "flew" as he had never flown before—without leaving the ground, without flying togs —almost without any togs at all. He went through all the motions of banking, looping, diving and spinning. And more unspectacularly, he flew for long stretches at a time on a steady course.

This cadet had more eyes on him than ever before. The gallery of directors took notes, observing from time to time that there was stress on this or that muscle. They saw, too, that the cadet continually turned his head from side to side, watching the imaginary terrain "below" and the sky above as well as the air on both sides.

They jotted down certain exercises to strengthen the neck in the right places. They noted the rigid position of the pilot in the cockpit, the consequent strain upon his abdominal muscles. They doped out ways to build up the muscles imposed upon.

The net result of this strange interview is that today every part of a gigantic physical training program now in swing in the southeast is devoted to the building up of the muscles most used by fliers.

"Farming made easier than ever before, because of finger tip control," is the unanimous verdict of nearly 100,000 new Ford Tractor owners. Ropes, rods and levers are completely eliminated. Any small child can easily and safely operate the Ferguson implement control by the merest finger tip touch. Automotive type steering, with 4-wheel stability, adds still further to the ease of handling and safety of the new Ford Tractor.

STOCKS SLANT BACKWARD ON DAY'S MARKET

Westinghouse Included In List of Issues Staging Short Retreat.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks generally leaned backward in today's market with the southwest Pacific war news receiving the principal blame.

Prominent retreaters were Union Pacific, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Standard Oil (NJ), Westinghouse, General Electric, U. S. Rubber Common and Preferred, Sears Roebuck, Oliver Farm, Anaconda, Kennecott and American Telephone.

Most aircrafts were about unchanged. Goodyear and J. I. Case managed to tack on small plus signs.

Word that the Japanese were tightening their grip on Java, despite exceptionally heavy losses, tended to dry up the buying urge for stocks that revived moderately last week. More Atlantic ship sinkings also helped cloud sentiment.

Market followers studied the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that indications were seen of a possible freight car shortage, especially in the east and that, while no immediate effect on steel-making has been noted, the continuing tight scrap situation may be accentuated by lack of shipping facilities.

Banking quarters found nothing to cheer about in a sharp fall in the volume of security financing last month. The total of $71,576,663 compared with $131,640,552 in February of 1941 and $259,129,411 in January of the present year.

OIL POOL SETS 15 YEAR RECORD

World's Greatest Crude Oil Reservoir Enters Year of Production.

(By United Press)

FORT STOCKTON Tex.—One of the world's greatest crude oil reservoirs—the Yates Pool of Pecos county, Texas—has entered its 16th year of production.

The Yates Pool is significant for its constant production but even more significant as the birthplace of modern pro-ration, a scheme used to conserve the nation's resources of "black gold."

Opened in 1926, it took three years by the trial and error method to formulate the plan of conservation. Fifteen companies agreed on the plan which preceded the program now administered on a state-wide scale by the Texas Railroad commission.

Under the plan, the Yates pool potential became scale for the entire area rather than basing the scale on individual well potential. This feature removed the premium on dense drilling of wells, and encouraged the drilling of only one well to each 40 acres.

Another provision prohibited drilling of any well more than 285 feet into the lime reservoir and thereby saved the pool from infiltration of water seepage. In addition engineers' approval was needed before wells could be shot with nitro Today only 36 wells in the field have been shot and only 89 given the acid treatment.

That the plan paid producers can be proved by statistics.

In some of the pools opened in the hey-day of oil activity more than half of the wells no longer produce, but in the Yates only 38 of the 557 wells are dead. After 15 years of productivity, the Yates still pumps a daily allowable of 21,984 barrels Other fields have become "stripper" areas, but not the Yates It is estimated that more than 700 million barrels are yet to be recovered.

FDR REVAMPS ARMY COMMAND

Sets Up Three Basic Units Under the Command of Chief of Staff.

Secretary Stimson to prescribe the duties of commanders of other forces of the army not designated specifically by the order, and directed him to issue from time to time "detailed instructions regarding personnel, funds, records, property, routing of correspondence and other matter."

The order said that such duties performed by Stimson were to be carried out "subject always to the exercise by the president directly through the chief of staff of his functions as commander-in-chief in relation to strategy, tactics and operations."

Mr. Roosevelt provided that the changes set forth in his order should become effective March 9, 1942, remaining in force for the continuance of the war and for six months after the termination.

The president acted under authority of the first war powers act of 1941 and as commander-in-chief of the army and navy.

In another executive order, the chief executive transferred all of the functions of the bureau of marine inspection and navigation, now in the Department of Commerce to the coast guard and the bureau of customs.

The order also transferred the training functions of the maritime commission to the coast guard, which is now part of the navy.

A White House statement accompanying the order said "this move is designed to facilitate the government's efforts in the intensive war time development of the merchant marine."

The order made the coast guard responsible henceforth for the safety inspections of every American merchant vessel, which heretofore has been the responsibility of local inspectors of the bureau of marine inspection and navigation. The coast guard also assumes responsibility for all marine casualty investigations.
